Section 495A, sub-section (2).	Sale, etc., of article similar to ghee.	One hundred rupees for a first offence and five hundred rupees for any subsequent offence.
Section 495B, sub-section (1).	Keeping or permitting to be kept any substance intended to be used for adulteration of ghee.	One hundred rupees for a first offence and five hundred rupees for any subsequent offence."

(2) for the entries relating to section 507, sub-section (1), the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"Section 507, sub-section (1).	Sale, for purposes of analysis, of food exposed for sale.	Two hundred rupees in case of ghee and fifty rupees in case of other food.
Section 507, sub-sections (1a) and (1b).	Sale or surrender of ghee, for purposes of analysis during manufacture, etc.	Two hundred rupees."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE existing law has failed to check the practice of adulterating ghee and selling adulterated ghee in Calcutta. In view of the evils resulting from widespread adulteration, it is considered necessary that more stringent measures should be taken to provide for the purity of the article and to penalize the manufacture, storage and sale of ghee that is adulterated.

Notes on Clauses.

Clause 2 defines the term "adulterated" in relation to ghee, there being no such definition in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899.

Clause 3 makes it clear that the power of giving a certificate under the proposed sub-section (5) of section 507 is not to be delegated to any Municipal officer.

Clause 4.—Sub-section (1) of the proposed section 495A prohibits the sale of ghee which contains any substance which is not derived exclusively from milk, or which is adulterated, unwholesome or unfit for human food. Sub-section (2) is designed to prevent persons from defeating the law by selling impure articles under a similar name. The provisions of sub-section (5) are intended as a safeguard against the institution of proceedings without proper justification.

Proposed section 495B is taken from section 3 of the Butter and Margarine Act (7, Edw. 7, c. 21) and is designed to be a further check on the adulteration of ghee.

Clause 5 is complementary to the proposed clause 4. The omission in the existing section 496 of a reference to the sale of ghee, which is unwholesome or unfit for human food, is due to the proposed section 495A, which covers the same ground.

Clause 6.—The proposed new sub-section (2a) introduces new provisions which are intended to enable the Chairman to retain in custody suspected ghee until samples are taken and analysed, the object being to avoid the difficulties and expense of removing the article before it is ascertained whether it should be condemned or not. These provisions will also prevent the disposal of the ghee before it is actually removed by the Municipal authorities.

Clause 7 applies the provisions of sections 502 and 503 of the Act to ghee in course of transit in Calcutta or stored in any place in Calcutta.

Clause 8 introduces amendments consequential upon the proposed section 503A.

Clause 9.—This consequential amendment is necessary owing to the proposed sub-section (2a) of section 503.

Clause 10.—The proposed sub-section (1a) of section 507 gives power to the Chairman similar to that conferred by sub-section (1) to compel the sale to him, during manufacture or storage of any ghee, the pureness of which he may desire to test. This is considered to be a very necessary provision in view of the frequent practice of adulteration of ghee while in process of manufacture.

The proposed sub-section (1b) enables the Chairman to take samples, for the purpose of analysis, of any ghee which is in transit in Calcutta or stored in any place in Calcutta. The price of any sample taken will be payable to the owner on demand within one month from the date of surrender of the same.

The division into three parts of samples purchased for analysis under this section has been made compulsory by sub-clauses (2) and (3) of clause 10 following the English precedent contained in section 13 of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1899.

The proposed sub-section (4) is complementary to the proposed sub-section (1b) and provides the procedure to be followed upon action taken under that sub-section. Sub-section (5) is intended to give probative value to the report of the analyst employed by the Corporation, so that it will not be necessary to call him as a witness in every case.

Clause 11.—This clause provides for punishment for breach of the provisions of the proposed sections 495A, sub-sections (1) and (2), 495B, sub-section (1), and 507, sub-sections (1a) and (1b), and an enhanced penalty in the case of ghee for breach of section 507*(1)*.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BENGAL SMOKE NUISANCES COMMISSION FOR THE YEAR 1916-17.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

Calcutta, the 7th September 1917.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Annual Report of the Bengal Smoke Nuisances Commission for the year 1916-17.

THE Commission held twelve meetings during the year.

2. The Inspectors of the Department made 10,399 observations of smoke emission, against 11,891 during the previous year, and they visited 4,936 factories, etc., for the purpose of inspection of power-plant, instruction of firemen and testing of fuel appliances, as against 5,236 in 1915-16.

3. The average emission of smoke of the greatest density was 1·31 minutes in the hour against 1·4 minutes in the past year. This is an improvement on the last year's result, and is the lowest figure on record.

4. The conditions arising from the war, by which it was essential to maintain the maximum possible output from factories, necessarily and rightly demanded great tact and discretion on the part of the Commission in dealing with excessive emission of smoke from such places. Again, the enormous increase in the price of material caused by the war made it quite impossible for factory-owners to carry out certain suggestions for improvement made by the Commission. In spite of these unfavourable conditions, it is satisfactory to note that progress has been made towards the abatement of smoke nuisance.

5. The Bengal Smoke Nuisances Act, 1905, was amended by Act I of 1916. The amended law came into force from the 5th April 1916. It has facilitated the work of the Commission in several ways.

During the year, by virtue of the amended law, two new members, one representing the Calcutta Corporation and the other the Port Commissioners of Calcutta, were added to the Commission, thereby securing for the first time a majority of non-officials in the Commission.

The provisions of the Act were also extended to the locality known as Panchpara, in the district of Howrah, in order to deal with the smoke emitted by the lime-kilns at that place. For some years past this emission of smoke had been a menace to safe navigation in the river Hooghli in that area.

Rules were framed under the amended Act by which the two hours hitherto allowed to ocean-going steamers for emitting offensive smoke prior to leaving moorings, were reduced to reasonable limits.

Finally, under the new law the Commission were given extended powers of control over flues or chimneys within their jurisdiction.

6. On the recommendation of the Commission the fees for the examination of ordinary and tindal stokers under the Act, which were high for this class of workmen, were reduced from Rs. 8 and Rs. 5 to Rs. 2 and Re. 1, respectively, from the 27th April 1917.

7. The number of complaints regarding smoke nuisance received by the Commission during the year was 47 against 42 in the previous year. Satisfactory relief was promptly given by the Commission wherever possible. Statutory warnings served on factory-owners, etc., were 52 against 86 in the preceding year. Prosecution was resorted to in 29 cases against 48 in the preceding year. All the cases ended in conviction. The decrease in the number of both statutory warnings and prosecutions is regarded as an encouraging sign, and it is hoped that in course of time the necessity for such measures will decrease more and more.

8. The use of gas and electricity for the purpose of generating heat and power was steadily on the increase. During the year 208 electric motors were installed in Calcutta against 231 in the past year.

9. The thanks of the Governor in Council are due to the public for their continued co-operation in the work of the Commission, and to the President and members of the Commission for their efficient administration of the Act and the rules issued thereunder.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry, the President of the Smoke Nuisances Commission, the Commissioners of the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, the Chairman, Calcutta Corporation, the Vice-Chairman, Port Commissioners, Calcutta, the Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, Master, Calcutta Trades Association, the Honorary Secretary to the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, the Chairman of the City Improvement Trust, Calcutta, and the Municipal Department of this Government.

Ordered, also, that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Governor in Council.

The Administration Report of the Commissioners for the Port of Chittagong for the year 1916-17.

Income.—The ordinary receipts of the Port Fund during the year 1916-17 amounted to Rs. 2,45,206 as against Rs. 2,85,290 of the preceding year. A grant of Rs. 1,50,000 was given by Government for the improvement of the Port, and a sum of Rs. 20,208 was received as an annual assignment from the Burma Coast Light Dues Fund. The total receipts of the Port Fund amounted to Rs. 4,15,414 as against Rs. 4,55,498 of the preceding year. The decrease was due to the fall in revenue on account of the war.

Expenditure.—The ordinary expenditure of the Port Fund amounted to Rs. 4,38,319 as against Rs. 4,62,184 of the previous year and Rs. 4,44,596, the budget estimate for the year. The difference between the estimate and the actual expenditure was due to savings under Establishment, Maintenance and Repairs and Miscellaneous Charges.

The expenditure on Capital works from the Port Fund during the year amounted to Rs. 95,424, of which the following were the principal items :—

	Rs.
Construction of a new hull for the S.T. Gekko	74,540
Cost of land for Arracan Yard Coal Depôt	7,660
Mooring materials	9,418

The construction of the new hull for the S.T. Gekko, which was commenced last year, was completed during the year.

Assets and Liabilities.—The value of the Port Commissioners' properties was estimated on the 31st March 1917 at Rs. 35,90,091, and the liabilities, excluding loans from Government for revetment work, amounted to Rs. 12,295.

Dredging.—Except during the periods of annual overhaul the dredger Karnafuli I was continuously at work. The total quantity dredged was 528,640 tons as against 592,250 tons of the preceding year.

The dredger was under repairs from 1st February to 14th April 1916, and again from 5th December 1916 to 12th February 1917.

The grab-dredgers were also at work for 233 days during the year.

Considerable dredging was necessitated during the year owing to the heavy deposits of silt at the railway terminal jetties and double moorings, and a new track had to be worked out for an approach to the jetties, as the old double mooring channel completely shoaled up. This excessive shoaling up was due to the change in the position of the main current of the river. A great improvement was effected in front of the Railway Jetties Nos. 1, 2 and 3 by the working of the grab-dredgers. Bucket-dredging was also carried out by the Karnafuli I making deep cuts beyond the reach of the grab-dredgers.

I. Outer Bar.—The dredging of the Outer Bar was carried out from time to time, and an average depth of 10′-0½″ was maintained during the year.

II. Inner Bar.—Dredging was continued on this bar, and a depth of 10 feet was maintained till the end of July 1916, but owing to a change of the river the track shoaled to 7′-6″ by the 13th September. The depth was increased in December 1916 to 9′-0″ by continuous dredging. On return of the dredger from Calcutta after repairs the depth was increased to 10 feet by the end of March 1917. An average depth of 9′-1½″ was maintained throughout the year.

III. Guptakhali Crossing—In the Guptakhali crossing there was considerable deterioration during the year under review, the least water on the main track at this crossing being 5′-0″, the lowest recorded, against 7′-0″, the lowest previously recorded in August 1915. The situation was relieved by means of suction dredging.

River Survey.—A distance of about seven miles in the upper portion of the river from Sadarghat to Telegraph posts was surveyed during the year.

Revetment.—The revetted portions of the river stood well during the year, slight repairs being necessary between khals Nos. 6 and 8.

Light-houses.—The Kutubdia and Norman Point Light-houses were maintained in good order.

In the south-west corner of the Kutubdia Light-house the revetment was extended up to the Government bund during the year.

Light-vessel.—The Light-vessel underwent necessary repairs this year in the Port of Chittagong No complaint regarding the exhibition of the lights was received. The total cost of maintaining the vessel amounted to Rs. 13,589.

Shipping.—The total number of steamers and country craft which entered the Port during the year was 1,272 as against 1,219 in the previous year.

There was only one accident to vessels in charge of Pilots and Harbour Masters in the Port.

Trade.—The total value of sea-borne trade, both foreign and coasting, amounted to Rs. 866·68 lakhs as against Rs. 863·86 lakhs in the previous year.

Sanitation.—The general health of the Port was good.

Mr. K. C. De, Commissioner, Chittagong Division, succeeded Mr. E. Geake as Chairman of the Commissioners with effect from the 30th April 1916.

The thanks of Government are due to these officers and to the Commissioners for their efficient administration of the Trust.

By order of the Governor in Council,

F. A. A. COWLEY,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 10th September 1917.

Summary.—During the week under report, light to moderate rain fell all over the province. More rain is, however, urgently needed in several districts for standing crops and for agricultural operations, especially the steeping and washing of jute and the transplanting of paddy which is proceeding slowly; weeding continues. Harvesting of jute and other autumn crops continues. The recent rise of the rivers has improved the prospects of the broadcast winter paddy in Eastern Bengal. Cattle-disease is reported from eight districts. Scarcity of fodder is still being felt in parts of Hooghly, Dacca and Mymensingh. The average price of common rice has fallen by about 0·4 per cent., as compared with that of the previous week.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

No. 1443.—A despatch by Lieutenant-General Sir F. S. Maude, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., on the operations of the Expeditionary Force in Mesopotamia, from the 28th August 1916 to the 31st March 1917, is published for general information.

No. O.-1621-1, dated 10th April 1917.

From—LIEUTENANT-GENERAL F. S. MAUDE, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., Commander-in-Chief, Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force,
To—The Chief of the General Staff, India.

I have the honour to submit herewith a report on the operations carried out by the Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force for the period extending from August 28th, 1916, the date upon which I assumed command of the Army, until March 31st, 1917, three weeks after the fall of Baghdad.

2. The area over which the responsibilities of the Army extended was a wide one, embracing Falahiyah on the Tigris, Ispahan (exclusive) in Persia, Bushire on the Persian Gulf and Nasariyah on the Euphrates. Briefly put the enemy's plan appeared to be to contain our main forces on the Tigris whilst a vigorous compaign, which would directly threaten India, was being developed in Persia. There were indications too of an impending move down the Euphrates towards Nasariyah. To disseminate our troops in order to safeguard the various conflicting interests involved would have relegated us to a passive defensive everywhere and it seemed clear from the outset that the true solution of the problem was a resolute offensive with concentrated forces on the Tigris, thus effectively threatening Baghdad, the centre from which the enemy's columns were operating. Such a stroke pursued with energy and success would, it was felt, automatically relieve the pressure in Persia and on the Euphrates, and preserve quiet in all districts with the security of which we were charged.

This, then, was the principle which guided the subsequent operations, which may be conveniently grouped into phases as follows:—

First.—Preliminary preparations from August 28th to December 12th.

Second.—The consolidation of our position on the Hai from December 13th to January 4th.

Third.—The operations in the Khadairi Bend from January 5th to 19th.

Fourth.—The operations against the Hai salient from January 20th to February 5th.

Fifth.—The operations in the Dahra Bend from February 6th to 16th.

Sixth.—The capture of Sannaiyat and passage of the Tigris from February 17th to 24th.

Seventh.—The advance on Baghdad from February 25th to March 11th.

Eighth.—The operations subsequent to the fall of Baghdad from March 12th to 31st.

PRELIMINARY PREPARATIONS.

August 28th to December 12th.

3. It was of paramount importance in view of the approach of the rainy season that no undue delay should take place in regard to the resumption of active operations, but before these could be undertaken with reasonable prospect of success it was necessary:—

(a) To improve the health and training of the troops who had suffered severely from the intense heat during the summer months;
(b) To perfect our somewhat precarious lines of communications;
(c) To develop our resources;
(d) To amass reserves of supplies, ammunition and stores at the front.

It was, therefore, considered desirable to retain General Headquarters at Basrah till the end of October in order to systematize, co-ordinate and expand (b) and (c), whilst (a) and (d) continued concurrently and subsequently.

4. Steady progress was made on the lines so carefully designed and developed by my predecessor Lieutenant-General Sir Percy Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., to whom my warm thanks are due for the firm foundations which had been laid for the ensuing winter campaign. The growth of Basrah as a military port and base continued, and the laying of railways was completed. The subsidence of the floods and the organization of local and imported labour removed obstacles which had hitherto hindered development, although conversely the lack of water in the rivers and consequent groundings of rivercraft gave rise to anxiety from time to time. The Directorate of Inland Water Transport was created and accessions of men and material arrived from overseas as well as additional rivercraft; whilst the influx of adequate and experienced personnel for the Directorate of Port Administration and Conservancy, Works, Railways, Supply and Transport and Ordnance enabled these services to cope more adequately with their responsibilities in maintaining the field army. Hospital accommodation was reviewed and still further expanded, whilst the Remount and Veterinary Services were overhauled and reconstituted. Changes were also made in the organisation of the army, the grouping of formations and units was readjusted, and alterations were made in the system of command. The line of communication defences were recast and additional line of communication units for administrative purposes were provided. Establishments for all units, whether on the various fronts or on the lines of communication were fixed, whilst the provision of mechanical transport and an increase in animals and vehicles enabled the land transport with the force to be reconstitut d.

5. During the latter part of October the Army was fortunate in receiving a visit from the incoming Commander-in-Chief in India—General Sir Charles Monro, G.C.M.G., K.C.B. His Excellency made an extended tour of the theatre of operations and his advice and comments on various matters were of the greatest value to myself personally, whilst the Army hailed his visit with the liveliest satisfaction, feeling that he would assume his office with first-hand and sympathetic knowledge of our needs and difficulties.

6. Matters had by this time developed so satisfactorily that during His Excellency's visit General Headquarters were moved to the front at Arab Village. Before joining there myself I carried out short tours of inspection on the Karun front at Ahwaz, proceeding as far as the oilfields, so as to make further provision for their local security, and on the Euphrates front at Nasariyah. At both places satisfactory conditions prevailed.

By the end of November preliminary preparations were well advanced. A steady stream of reinforcements had been moving up the Tigris for some weeks and drafts were joining their units, making good the wastage of the summer. The troops had shaken off the ill effects of the hot weather and their war training had improved. Stores, ammunition and supplies were accumulating rapidly at the front, our communications were assured, and it seemed clear that it was only a matter of days before offensive operations could be justifiably undertaken. Training camps which had been formed at Amarah were broken up and the general concentration upstream of Sheikh Sa'ad was completed.

7. At the beginning of December the enemy still occupied the same positions on the Tigris front on which he had occupied during the summer. On the left bank of the Tigris he held the Sannaiyat position, flanked on one side by the Suwaikieh Marsh and on the other by the river. In this position he had withstood our attacks on three occasions during the previous April. Since then he had strengthened and elaborated this trench system and a series of successive positions extended back as far as Kut, 15 miles in rear. The river bank from Sannaiyat to Kut was also entrenched.

On the right bank of the Tigris the enemy held the line to which he had withdrawn in May when he evacuated the Sinn position. This line extended from a point on the Tigris three miles north-east of Kut in a south-westerly direction across the Khadairi Bend to the river Hai two miles below its exit from the Tigris, and thence across the Hai to the north-west. There was a pontoon bridge across the Hai near its junction with the Tigris, which was protected by the trench system in that vicinity. These defences also covered the approaches from the east and south to another pontoon bridge which the Turks had constructed across the Tigris on the eastern side of the Shumran peninsula. The enemy occupied the line of the Hai for several miles below the bridge-head position with posts and mounted Arab auxiliaries.

On the left bank of the Tigris our trenches were within 120 yards of the Turkish front line at Sannaiyat. On the right bank our troops were established some eleven miles upstream of Sannaiyat, with advanced posts about two miles from those of the Turks opposite the Khadairi Bend, and some five miles from his position on the Hai.

In the positions outlined above desultory warfare with intermittent artillery and aerial activity had continued for some months.

Strategically we were better situated than the enemy. The withdrawal of the bulk of his troops from the right bank of the Tigris left him with his communications in prolongation of his battle front. If we established ourselves on the Hai it would mean that we should be able to strike at those communications or at least at the point of junction between his field units and his communications. On the other hand we were exposed to no such danger. The Suwaikieh Marsh, although it protected the northern flank of the Sannaiyat position, also formed an obstacle which necessitated a wide detour through a district at times marshy, at others waterless, to reach the river line behind us. Again our troops were suitably disposed to meet any attempt from the Hai to turn our left flank and thus strike our communications—a movement which would have involved long marches with difficulties as regards water and supplies.

It was decided therefore to operate as follows:—First, to secure possession of the Hai; secondly, to clear the Turkish trench system still remaining on the right bank of the Tigris; thirdly, to sap the enemy's strength by constant attacks and give him no rest; fourthly to compel him to give up the Sannaiyat position, or, in default of that, to extend his attenuated forces more and more to counter our strokes against his communications; and lastly, to cross the Tigris at the weakest part of his line as far west as possible and so sever his communications. In carrying out this programme our extended line offered good opportunities for making successful feints to cover our real intention.

THE CONSOLIDATION OF OUR POSITION ON THE HAI.

From December 13th to January 4th.

8. By the 12th the concentration of our troops upstream of Sheikh Sa'ad was complete. To the force under Lieutenant-General A. S. Cobbe, V.C., K.C.B., D.S.O., was assigned the task of holding the enemy to his position on the left bank of the Tigris and piquetting the right bank as far as Sinn Banks, while the cavalry and the force under Lieutenant-General W. R. Marshall, K.C.B., were by a surprise march to secure and entrench a position on the Hai.

During the night of the 12th-13th Lieutenant-General Marshall's force completed its concentration in the forward area on the right bank. On the 13th General Headquarters moved forward to Sinn, whilst Lieutenant-General Cobbe bombarded the Turkish trenches on the left bank so as to give the impression that an attack on Sannaiyat was intended.

On the night of the 13th-14th the cavalry and Lieutenant-General Marshall's force marched westwards to the Hai and at 6 A.M. crossed that river at Basrugiyah and Atab respectively. The enemy was surprised and the force pivotting on its right moved up the left (or eastern) bank of the Hai, whilst the cavalry cleared the right, (or western) bank, driving the enemy's advanced troops back on to the Hai bridge-head position which was strongly held. Two pontoon bridges were thrown across the Hai at Atab, the right flank of the force under Lieutenant-General Marshall was secured by linking up its old front line defences with its new position on the Hai, and Lieutenant-General Cobbe continued to demonstrate against Sannaiyat.

During the night of the 14th-15th our aeroplanes, flying by moonlight, bombed the Turkish bridge over the Tigris east of the Shumran peninsula, which the enemy was endeavouring to move further upstream, and the pontoons, breaking adrift, were scattered. By the 18th the enemy succeeded in re-establishing this bridge to the west of Shumran.

Between the 15th and 18th Lieutenant-General Marshall extended his hold northwards and westwards and pressure against the enemy's Hai bridge-head position was continued, whilst bombardments destroyed his bridge and sunk several of his pontoon ferries. Except for some patrolling and sniping the enemy showed no offensive enterprise; but he worked hard at his defences every night.

On the 18th we interposed between the two Turkish trench systems on the right bank of the Tigris opposite Kut, thus severing the enemy's lateral communications on this bank and giving us command of the river upstream of the Khudairi Bend. The extent of river line to be watched by Lieutenant-General Cobbe was now extended up to this point.

9 The remainder of the month and the first part of January were devoted to consolidating our position on the Hai. Communications were improved by making additional bridges and by the construction of roads and the light railway was pushed forward to the Hai. Operations were hampered by heavy rain which fell during the last week in December and the first week in January, flooding large tracts of country, and by a sudden rise in the river which occurred early in the new year. The single-line light railway and the land transport were materially affected, and only sheer determination on the part of those concerned enabled them to carry on their functions under these trying conditions.

Where the ground was not too sodden by rain and floods our cavalry was constantly engaged during this period in reconnaissances, in harassing the enemy's communications west of the Hai, and in raids capturing stock and grain. For example, on the 18th the cavalry with detachment of infantry operating west of Shumran drove the enemy from his trenches and shelled his bridge and shipping, and on the 20th, while a similar raid was being made against the Shumran bridge area and bombardments were being carried out around Kut and at Sannaiyat, a column of all arms essayed to bridge the Tigris four miles west of Shumran. But as our arrival there had been anticipated by the enemy, and the further bank was found to be strongly entrenched, the troops were ordered to withdraw after some gallant attempts to launch pontoons had been made and after some Turks found on the right bank had been taken prisoners.

As the result of our occupation of the Hai we had:—

(a) Secured a position whence we could control that waterway and directly threaten the enemy's communications west of Shumran;
(b) Rendered Nasariyah safe against a hostile movement from the Tigris down the Hai;
(c) Increased the possibility of obtaining supplies from the prosperous districts on the middle Hai, and rendered it correspondingly difficult for the enemy to supply himself from there;
(d) Interposed between the Turks and their adherents at Shattra.

THE OPERATIONS IN THE KHADAIRI BEND.

January 5th to 19th.

10. It was evident that the enemy intended to maintain his hold on the right bank of the Tigris, and preparations were accordingly made to reduce these trench systems. His position in the Khadairi Bend was a menace to our communications with the Hai, for in the event of a high flood he could inundate portions of our line by opening the river bunds. It was therefore decided to clear the Khadairi Bend in the first instance and this operation was assigned to the force under Lieutenant-General Cobbe. The enemy held a well-prepared line some 2,000 yards long facing east. The ground in front was flat and bare, except for a belt of low brushwood along the river bank on the northern flank. At the southern end, 200 yards from the river and parallel to it, was a double row of sandhills on which the enemy had constructed a strong point with covered-in machine gun emplacements. The front of the position was swept by fire from both flanks from the left bank of the river. There was a second line in rear at distances varying from 500 to 1,000 yards from the front line, whilst between the two were trenches and nalas prepared for defence. The southern portion of the second line and some sandhills 400 yards behind it formed a last position, and the garrison had communication with the left bank by means of ferries, which, owing to the conformation of the river bend, were protected from direct rifle and machine gun fire so long as this retired position was held.

Our troops drove in the Turkish advanced posts, but progress was slow as many of the trenches had to be made by sapping. On the 7th our trenches were within 200 to 350 yards of the enemy, the rain had ceased, and as the ground was beginning to dry preparations for the assault were made This preliminary stage had involved digging some 25,000 yards of trench under trying conditions—constant rain and exposure to enfilade as well as direct fire.

11. On the 7th and 8th bombardments were carried out. On the 9th a successful assault was delivered with small loss on a front of 600 yards against the southern end of the Turkish line, but a thick mist hindered further artillery support and facilitated counter-attack by the enemy. Severe hand to hand fighting ensued, but the Gurkhas and Mahrattas on the left reached the river bend, having inflicted severe casualties on the enemy. On the right our troops continued to gain ground along trenches and nalas until a heavy counter-attack, made under cover of the mist, temporarily checked its progress. This counter-attack was defeated with heavy loss by the resolute resistance of the Manchesters, a frontier Rifle Regiment and a detachment of Sikh Pioneers. The ground gained was consolidated during the night.

Prior to the attack on the 9th raids had been made into the enemy's front line at Sannaiyat. Simultaneously a diversion was carried out by Lieutenant-General Marshall against the Hai bridge-head, whilst other intended operations west of the Hai by the cavalry and a detachment of Lieutenant-General Marshall's force were necessarily abandoned on account of the mist.

12. On the 10th the attack was resumed in foggy weather and the enemy was pressed back trench by trench till by nightfall he had fallen back to his last position.

On the 11th an unsuccessful attack was made on this position. Our troops reached their objective but were driven back by a strong counter-attack. A further counter-attack, which attempted to recover trenches which we had taken on the previous day, suffered heavily from our artillery and machine guns during its retirement. On this occasion a battalion of Sikhs specially distinguished themselves.

On the same day the cavalry occupied Hai town and remained there several days. A considerable quantity of arms, ammunition and supplies was captured, and on our withdrawal an attack made on our troops as they retired received well-merited punishment, a Jat Lancer Regiment executing a brilliant charge.

13. Owing to the open nature of the ground now confronting our troops, and in view of the fact that it was commanded at close range from both flanks from across the river, it was decided to construct covered approaches and trenches in which to assemble the troops under cover prior to the assault.

By the 17th the forward trench system was completed, and one by one the enemy's advanced posts had been captured. A strong point, which would enfilade the attack, only remained. On the night of the 17th-18th our troops captured and lost this redoubt twice. They retook it again on the 18th and held it.

The final assault was fixed for the 19th, but during the night of the 18th-19th the enemy, under cover of rifle and machine gun fire, retired across the river.

During these operations the fighting had been severe and mainly hand to hand, but the enemy, in spite of his tenacity, had more than met his match in the dash and resolution of our troops, and had learnt a lesson which was to become more deeply ingrained on subsequent occasions. The enemy's losses, judging from the number of dead found by us, were very heavy, and we captured many prisoners and a considerable quantity of war stores

THE OPERATIONS AGAINST THE HAI SALIENT.

From January 20th to February 5th.

14. On the 11th, while Lieutenant-General Cobbe was still engaged in clearing the Khadairi Bend, Lieutenant-General Marshall commenced preparations for the reduction of the Hai salient, the extensive trench system which the Turks held astride the Hai river near its junction with the Tigris, and for a fortnight we gained ground steadily in face of strong opposition until on the 24th our trenches were within 400 yards of the enemy's front line.

15. On the 25th the enemy's front line astride the Hai was captured on a frontage of about 1,800 yards. On the eastern (or left) bank our troops extended their success to the Turkish second line and consolidated and held all ground won in spite of counter-attacks during the day and following night. The enemy lost heavily, both from our bombardment and in violent hand to hand encounters. On the western (or right) bank the task was a severe one. The trench system attacked was elaborate and offered facilities for counter-attack. The enemy was in considerable strength on this bank, and guns and machine guns in skilfully concealed positions enfiladed our advance. Our objective was secured, but the Turks made four counter-attacks. The first was repulsed; the second reached the captured line and was about to recapture it when a gallant charge across the open by the Royal Warwicks restored the situation; the third was broken up by our artillery fire; the fourth, supported by artillery and trench mortars, forced our infantry back to their own trenches. As it was now late, further attack was postponed till the following morning.

On the 26th the assault was renewed by two Punjabi battalions with complete success, and the captured trenches were at once consolidated. Subsequently our gains were increased by bombing attacks and with the bayonet in face of stubborn opposition, and a counter-attack in the afternoon was repulsed by our artillery. Meanwhile our troops had considerably increased their hold on the enemy's position east of the Hai by bombing attacks, though their progress was hampered by the battered condition of the trenches and by the numbers of Turkish dead lying in them. On this bank the first and second lines, on a frontage of 2,000 yards, were captured by the 27th, and on the following day the whole of the front line had been secured on a frontage of two miles and to a depth varying from 300 to 700 yards the enemy withdrawing to an inner line.

On the 27th and 28th our troops penetrated further into the Turkish defences west of the Hai by bombing attacks supported by artillery barrage and consolidated their position in the first four lines of trenches on a frontage of 600 yards. On the 29th they secured more trenches by means of infantry raids supported by artillery.

16. The movements of the cavalry had meanwhile been restricted by the water-logged state of the ground It had been intended to move the Division vid Bedrah and Jessan against the enemy's rear, so as to synchronize with Lieutenant-General Marshall's attack, and reconnaisannce shewed that the proposal was feasible, but soon after the movement had commenced a heavy thunderstorm burst over the district, and the flooding of the Marsh of Jessan and its neighbourhood rendered progress impracticable, and the attempt was abandoned. The work done by the cavalry in man-handling guns and vehicles on this occasion was especially commendable.

17. After a short pause to readjust our dispositions, the centre of the enemy's third line on the eastern (or left) bank of the Hai was successfully assaulted by the Cheshires on February 1st. Bombers pushed rapidly east and west until the whole trench had been secured from the Tigris to the Hai on a front of about 2,100 yards, and an attempted counter-attack was broken by our artillery. The enemy's casualties were heavy, and many prisoners were taken. On the western (or right) bank the two Sikh Battalions captured the enemy's position on a front of 500 yards, but our troops, especially the left of the attack, were subjected to artillery and machine gun fire in enfilade. The trench system was complicated and difficult to consolidate and it was not long before the Turks delivered a counter-attack in strength. The most advanced parties of our infantry met the enemy's charge in brilliant style by a counter-charge in the open, and casualties on both sides were severe. The preponderance of weight was, however, with the enemy, and our troops in spite of great gallantry were forced back by sheer weight of numbers to their original front line.

Owing to foggy weather on the 2nd which hampered artillery registration, a renewal of the attack was deferred until the 3rd, but meanwhile Lieutenant-General Marshall extended his left northwestwards towards the Tigris at Yusufiyah with a view to enclosing the Dahra Bend ultimately.

18. On the 3rd the Devons and a Gurkha battalion carried the enemy's first and second lines, and a series of counter-attacks by the Turks which continued up till dark withered away under our shrapnel and machine gun fire. Our troops east of the Hai co-operated with machine gun and rifle fire and two counter-attacks by the enemy on the left bank of the Hai during the day were satisfactorily disposed of. In the evening there were indications that he was contemplating withdrawal to the right bank, and by daybreak on the 4th the whole of the left bank had passed into our possession. That night there was heavy rifle fire on our front up to midnight when it gradually died away. Patrols before dawn encountered little opposition and the enemy was found to have fallen back to the Liquorice Factory and a line east and west across the Dahra Bend.

During this period the splendid fighting qualities of the infantry were well seconded by the whole support rendered by the artillery, and by the ceaseless work carried out by the Royal Flying Corps. These operations had again resulted in heavy losses to the enemy, as testified to by the dead found, and many prisoners—besides arms, ammunition, equipment and stores—had been taken, whilst the Turks now only retained a fast vanishing hold on the right bank of the Tigris.

THE OPERATIONS IN THE DAHRA BEND.

February 6th to 16th.

19. The 6th to the 8th were days of preparation, but continuous pressure on the enemy was maintained day and night by vigorous patrolling and intermittent bombardment, and many minor enterprises were undertaken whereby losses were inflicted and advanced posts wrested from him. An assault on the Liquorice Factory would have been costly; therefore it was decided to deal with it by howitzer and machine gun fire, so as to render it untenable—or at least prevent the Garrison from enfilading our troops as they moved north.

On the 9th the Liquorice Factory was bombarded and simultaneously, the King's Own effected a lodgment in the centre of the enemy's line, thereafter gaining ground rapidly forward and to both flanks. Repeated attacks by the enemy's bombers met with no success and two attempted counter-attacks were quickly suppressed by our artillery. Further west the Worcesters, working towards Yusufiyah and west of that place captured some advanced posts, trenches and prisoners, and established a line within 2,500 yards of the Tigris at the southern end of the Shumran Bend.

On the 10th our infantry in the trenches west of the Liquorice Factory who had been subjected all night to repeated bombing attacks, began early to extend our hold on the enemy's front line. This movement was followed by a bombardment directed against machine guns located at Kut and along the left bank of the Tigris which were bringing a galling fire to bear against our right. During this the Buffs and a Gurkha Battalion dashed forward and, joining hands with the King's Own on their left, the whole line advanced northwards. As communication trenches did not exist, any movement was necessarily across the open and was subject to a hot fire from concealed machine guns on the left bank, but in spite of this progress was made all along the front to depths varying from 300 to 2,000 yards; our success compelling the enemy to evacuate the Liquorice Factory. Artillery observations was much hindered by a high wind and dust storm.

20. The operations of the 10th and the information obtained by patrols during the night of the 10th-11th made it clear that the enemy had withdrawn to an inner line, approximately two and a half miles long, across the Dahra Bend, with advanced posts strongly held. Weather conditions rendered aerial reconnaisance impracticable and some readjustment of our front was necessary before further attack upon his trenches could be justified, but on the 11th our infantry established a post on the Tigris south-east of the Shumran peninsula, and on the following day extended our hold on the right bank. The enemy was finally enclosed in the Dahra Bend by the 13th.

An attack against the enemy's right centre offered the best prospects of success and this involved the construction of trenches and approaches for the accommodation of troops destined for the assault. The foreground was, however, occupied by the enemy's piquets and the dispersal of these necessitated a series of minor combats between our patrols and the enemy's covering troops as well as some severe fighting on the 12th. Opposite our right an important point was brilliantly captured by assault across the open on the 12th by an Indian Grenadier Battalion and retained, in spite of heavy fire, during the advance and two counter-attacks launched subsequently. This success not only deprived the enemy of a point from which he could enfilade most of his own front, but enabled us to force the withdrawal of his advanced posts in the eastern section of his position.

During the four days of preparation, although there were indications that the enemy intended to stand and fight, the most likely ferry points were bombarded every night lest transfers of men and stores across the Tigris might be in progress.

21. Early on the 15th the Loyal North Lancashires captured a strong point opposite our left which enfiladed the approaches to the enemy's right and centre, the retiring Turks losing heavily from our machine gun fire. An hour later the enemy's extreme left was subjected to short bombardment and feint attack. This caused the enemy to disclose his barrage in front of our right and indicated that our constant activity on this part of his front had been successful in making him believe that our main attack would be made against that part of his line.

Shortly after the Royal Welsh Fusiliers and South Wales Borderers carried the enemy's right centre in dashing style on a front of 700 yards, and extended their success by bombing to a depth of 500 yards on a frontage of 1,000 yards, taking many prisoners. Several half-hearted counter-attacks ensued, which were crushed by our artillery and machine guns, and it became evident that the enemy had strengthened his left and could not transfer troops back to his centre on account of our barrage. A little later the enemy's left centre was captured by the Buffs and Dogras and, pushing on in a north-easterly direction to the bank of the Tigris, they isolated the enemy's extreme left where about 1,000 Turks surrendered. By nightfall the only resistance was from some trenches in the right rear of the position, covering about a mile of the Tigris bank, from which the enemy were trying to escape across the river, and it had been intended to clear these remaining trenches by a combined operation during the night, but two companies of a Gurkha Battalion, acting on their own initiative, obtained a footing in them and took 98 prisoners. By the morning of the 16th they had completed their task, having taken 264 more prisoners. The total number of prisoners taken on the 15th and 16th was 2,005, and the Dahra Bend was cleared of the enemy.

Thus terminated a phase of severe fighting brilliantly carried out. To eject the enemy from this horseshoe bend bristling with trenches and commanded from across the river on three sides by hostile batteries and machine guns called for offensive qualities of a high standared on the part of the troops. That such good results were achieved was due to the heroism and determination of the infantry and to the close and ever present support rendered by the artillery whose accurate fire was assisted by efficient aeroplane observation. Very heavy rain fell on the night of the 15-16th and torrential rain during the afternoon and night of the 16th, bivouacs and trenches being flooded out.

22. The enemy had now after two months of strenuous fighting been driven entirely from the right bank of the Tigris in the neighbourhood of Kut. He still held, however, a very strong position defensively, in that it was protected from Sannaiyat to Shumran by the Tigris, which also afforded security to his communications running along the left bank of that river. The successive lines at Sannaiyat which had been consistently strengthened for nearly a year barred the way on a narrow front to an advance on our part along the left bank, whilst north of Sannaiyat the Suwaikieh Marsh and the Marsh of Jessan rendered the Turks immune from attack from the north. On the other hand we had, by the application of constant pressure to the vicinity of Shumran, where the enemy's battle line and communications met, compelled him so to weaken and expand his front that his attenuated forces were found to present vulnerable points if these could be ascertained. The moment then seemed ripe to cross the river and commence conclusions with the enemy on the left bank. To effect this it was important that his attention should be engaged about Sannaiyat and along the river line between Sannaiyat and Kut whilst the main stroke was being prepared and delivered as far west as possible.

THE CAPTURE OF SANNAIYAT AND PASSAGE OF THE TIGRIS.

From February 17th to 24th.

23. While Lieutenant-General Marshall's force was engaged in the Dahra Bend Lieutenant-General Cobbe maintained constant activity along the Sannaiyat front, and, as soon as the right bank had been cleared, orders were issued for Sannaiyat to be attacked on the 17th.

The sodden condition of the ground, consequent on heavy rain during the preceding day and night, hampered final preparations, but the first and second lines on a frontage of about 400 yards were captured by a surprise assault with little loss. Before the captured trenches, however, could be consolidated, they were subjected to heavy fire from artillery and trench mortars, and were strongly counter-attacked by the enemy. The first counter-attack was dispersed, but the second regained for the enemy his lost ground, except on the river bank, where a party of Gurkhas maintained themselves until dusk and were then withdrawn. Although we had failed to hold the trenches won, considerable loss had been inflicted on the enemy, especially during the counter-attacks, and the operations had served their purpose in attracting the enemy to the Sannaiyat front.

The water-logged state of the country and a high flood on the Tigris now necessitated a pause, but the time was usefully employed in methodical preparation for the passage of the Tigris about Shumran. Positions for guns and machine guns to support the crossing were selected, approaches and ramps were made, and crews were trained to man the pontoons. In order to keep our intentions concealed it was necessary that most of the details, including the movement of guns, should be carried out under cover of night. Opposite Sannaiyat, where it was intended to renew the assault, artillery barrages were carried out daily, in order to induce the enemy to expect such barrages unaccompanied by an assault as part of the daily routine. Minor diversions were also planned to deceive the enemy as to the point at which it was intended to cross the river.

On the 22nd the Seaforths and a Punjabi battalion assaulted Sannaiyat, with the same objective as on the 17th. The enemy were again taken by surprise and our losses were slight. A series of counter-attacks followed, and the first three were repulsed without difficulty. The fourth drove back our left, but the Punjabis, reinforced by an Indian Rifle Battalion and assisted by the fire of the Seaforths who were still holding the Turkish trenches on their right front, re-established their position. Two more counter-attacks which followed were defeated. As soon as the captured position had been consolidated, two frontier force regiments assaulted the trenches still held by the enemy in prolongation of and to the north of those already occupied by us. A counter-attack forced our right back temporarily, but the situation was restored by the arrival of reinforcements and by nightfall we were in secure occupation of the first two lines of Sannaiyat. The brilliant tenacity of the Seaforths throughout this day deserves special mention.

Feints in connection with the passage of the Tigris were made on the nights of the 22nd-23rd opposite Kut and at Magasis respectively. Opposite Kut preparations for bridging the Tigris opposite the Liquorice Factory under cover of a bombardment of Kut were made furtively in daylight, and every detail down to the erection of observation ladders was provided for. The result was, as afterwards ascertained, that the enemy moved infantry and guns into the Kut peninsula, and these could not be re-transferred to the actual point of crossing in time to be of any use. The feint at Magasis consisted of a raid across the river, made by a detachment of Punjabis, assisted by parties of Sappers and Miners and of the Sikh Pioneers. This bold raid was successfully carried out with trifling loss and the detachment returned with a captured trench mortar.

The site selected for the passage of the Tigris was at the south end of the Shumran Bend, where the bridge was to be thrown, and three ferrying places were located immediately downstream of this point. Just before daybreak on the 23rd the three ferries began to work. The first trip at the ferry immediately below the bridge site, where the Norfolks crossed, was a complete surprise and five machine guns and some 300 prisoners were captured. Two battalions of Gurkhas, who were using the two lower ferries, were met by a staggering fire before they reached the left bank, but in spite of losses in men and pontoons they pressed on gallantly and effected a landing. The two downstream ferries were soon under such heavy machine gun fire that they had to be closed, and all ferrying was subsequently carried on by means of the upstream ferry. By 7-30 A.M., about three companies of the Norfolks and some 150 of the Gurkhas were on the left bank. The enemy's artillery became increasingly active, but was vigorously engaged by ours, and the construction of the bridge commenced. The Norfolks pushed rapidly upstream on the left bank taking many prisoners, whilst our machine guns on the right bank west of the Shumran Bend inflicted casualties on those Turks who tried to escape. The Gurkha battalions on the right and centre were meeting with more opposition and their progress was slower. By 3 P.M. all three battalions were established on an east and west line one mile north of the bridge site and a fourth battalion was being ferried over. The enemy attempted to counter-attack down the centre of the peninsula and to reinforce along its western edge, but both attempts were foiled by the quickness and accuracy of our artillery. At 4-30 P.M. the bridge was ready for traffic.

By nightfall, as a result of the day's operations, our troops had by their unconquerable valour and determination forced a passage across a river in flood, 340 yards wide, in face of strong opposition, and had secured a position 2,000 yards in depth covering the bridge-head, while ahead of this line our patrols were acting vigorously against the enemy's advanced detachments, who had suffered heavy losses, including about 700 prisoners taken in all. The infantry of one division were across and another division was ready to follow.

25. While the crossing at Shumran was proceeding, Lieutenant-General Cobbe had secured the third and fourth lines at Sannaiyat. Bombing parties occupied the fifth line later and work was carried on all night making roads across the maze of trenches for the passage of artillery and transport.

26. Early on the 24th our troops in the Shumran Bend resumed the advance supported by machine guns and artillery from the right bank. The enemy held on tenaciously at the north-east corner of the peninsula, where there is a series of nalas in which a number of machine guns were concealed but after a strenuous fight lasting for four or five hours he was forced back and two field and two machine guns and many prisoners fell into our possession. Further west our troops were engaged with strong enemy forces in the intricate mass of ruins, mounds and nalas which lie to the north-west of Shumran, and rapid progress was impossible, but towards evening the enemy had been pushed back to a depth of 1,000 yards, although he still resisted stubbornly. While this fighting was in progress the cavalry, the artillery, and another division crossed the bridge. The cavalry attempted to break through at the northern end of the Shumran Bend to operate against the enemy's rear along the Baghdad road by which aeroplanes reported hostile columns to be retreating, but strong Turkish rearguards entrenched in nalas prevented them issuing from the peninsula. That evening the troops closed up ready to advance early next morning. There was every indication that the enemy was in full retreat and that the force which had opposed us all day was a strong and very resolute rearguard, which would probably withdraw by night. During this day's fighting at Shumran heavy losses had been inflicted on the enemy, and our captures had been increased in all to 4 field guns, 8 machine guns some 1,650 prisoners, and a large quantity of rifles, ammunition, equipment and war stores. The gunboats were now ordered upstream from Falahiyah and reached Kut the same evening.

27. While these events were happening at Shumran, Lieutenant-General Cobbe cleared the enemy's sixth line at Sannaiyat, the Nakhailat and Suwada positions, and the left bank as far as Kut without much opposition.

The capture of the Sannaiyat position, which the Turks believed to be impregnable, had only been accomplished after a fierce struggle, in which our infantry, closely supported by our artillery, displayed great gallantry and endurance against a brave and determined enemy. The latter had again suffered severely. Many trenches were choked with corpses, and the open ground, where counter-attacks had taken place, was strewn with them.

THE ADVANCE ON BAGHDAD.

From February 25th to March 11th.

28. Early in the morning on the 25th, the cavalry and Lieutenant-General Marshall's forced moved north-west in pursuit of the enemy, whose rearguards had retired in the night. The gunboats also proceeded upstream. Our troops came in contact with the enemy about eight miles from Shumran, and drove him back, in spite of stubborn resistance, to his main position two miles further west, where the Turks, strong in artillery, were disposed in trenches and nalas. Our guns, handled with dash, gave valuable support, but were handicapped in this flat country by being in the open, whilst the Turkish guns were concealed in gun pits. After a severe fight our infantry gained a footing in the enemy's position and took about 400 prisoners. The cavalry on the northern flank had been checked by entrenched infantry and were unable to envelope the Turkish rearguard. The Royal Navy on our left flank co-operated with excellent effect in the bombardment of the enemy's position during the day.

On the 26th one column, following the bend of the river, advanced to force any position which the enemy might be holding on the left bank of the Tigris, whilst another column of all arms marched direct to the Sumar Bend in order to intercept him. His retreat proved however to be too rapid. Stripping themselves of guns and other encumbrances, the Turks just evaded our troops, who had made a forced march across some 18 miles of arid plain. Our cavalry came up with the enemy's rear parties and shelled his rearguard entrenched near Nahr Kellak.

29. The gunboat flotilla, proceeding upstream 'full speed ahead,' came under very heavy fire at the closest range from guns, machine guns and rifles, to which it replied vigorously. In spite of casualties and damage to the vessels the flotilla held on its course past the rearguard position, and did considerable execution among the enemy's retreating columns. Further upstream many of the enemy's craft were struggling to get away, and the Royal Navy pressed forward in pursuit. The hostile vessels were soon within easy range and several surrendered, including the armed tug "Sumana" which had been captured at Kut when that place fell. The Turkish steamer "Basra" full of troops and wounded surrendered, when brought to by a shell which killed and wounded some German machine gunners. H. M. S. "Firefly," captured from us during the retreat from Ctesiphon in 1915, kept up a running fight, but after being hit several times she fell into our hands, the enemy making an unsuccessful attempt to set fire to her magazine. The "Pioneer" badly hit by our fire was also taken, as well as some barges laden within munitions. Our gunboats were in touch with and shelled the retreating enemy during most of the 27th, and his retirement was harassed by the cavalry until after dark, when his troops were streaming through Aziziyeh in great confusion.

30. The pursuit was broken off at Aziziyeh (50 miles from Kut and half-way to Baghdad), where the gunboats, cavalry and Lieutenant-General Marshall's infantry were concentrated during the pause necessary to re-organise our extended line of communication preparatory to a further advance. Lieutenant-General Cobbe's force closed to the front, clearing the battlefields and protecting the line of march. Immense quantities of equipment, ammunition, rifles, vehicles and stores of all kinds lay scattered throughout the 80 miles over which the enemy had retreated under pressure, and marauders on looting intent did not hesitate to attack small parties who stood in their way.

Since crossing the Tigris we had captured some 4,000 prisoners, of whom 188 were officers, 39 guns, 22 trench mortars, 11 machine guns, H. M. S. "Firefly," "Sumana" (recaptured), "Pioneer," "Basra," and several smaller vessels, besides ten barges, pontoons and other bridging material, quantities of rifles, bayonets, equipment, ammunition and explosives, vehicles and miscellaneous stores of all kinds. In addition the enemy threw into the river or otherwise destroyed several guns and much war material.

31. On the 5th, the supply situation having been rapidly readjusted, Lieutenant-General Marshall marched to Zeur (18 miles), preceded by the cavalry, which moved seven miles further to Lajj. Here the Turkish rearguard was found in an entrenched position, very difficult to locate by reason of a dense dust storm that was blowing and of a network of nalas with which the country is intersected. The cavalry was hotly engaged with the enemy in this locality throughout the day and took some prisoners. A noticeable feature of the day's work was a brilliant charge made, mounted, by the Hussars straight into the Turkish trenches. The enemy retreated during the night.

The dust storm continued on the 6th, when the cavalry carrying out some useful reconnaissances, got within three miles of the Dialah river and picked up some prisoners. The Ctesiphon position strongly entrenched was found unoccupied. There was evidence that the enemy had intended to hold it, but the rapidity of our advance had evidently prevented him from doing so, Lieutenant-General Marshall followed the cavalry to Bustan (17 miles) and the head of Lieutenant-General Cobbe's column reached Zeur.

On the 7th our advanced guard came in contact with the enemy on the line of the Dialah river, which joins the Tigris on its left bank about eight miles below Baghdad. As the ground was absolutely flat and devoid of cover it was decided to make no further advance till after sunset. Our gunboats and artillery however came into action against the hostile guns.

32. Measures for driving the enemy's infantry from the Dialah were initiated on the night of the 7th-8th. It appeared as though the enemy had retired, but when the first pontoon was launched it was riddled by rifle and machine gun fire. A second attempt was made with artillery and machine gun co-operation Five pontoons were launched but they were all stopped by withering fire from concealed machine guns. They floated downstream and were afterwards recovered in the Tigris river with a few wounded survivors on board, and further ferrying enterprises were for the time being deemed impracticable. It now became evident that, although the line of the Dialah was not held strongly, it was well defended by numerous guns and machine guns skilfully sited, and the bright moonlight favoured the defence. To assist in forcing the passage a small column from the force under Lieutenant-General Marshall was ferried across the Tigris in order to enfilade the enemy's position with its guns from the right bank of that river.

During the night of the 8th-9th, after an intense bombardment of the opposite bank, an attempt was made to ferry troops across the Dialah river from four separate points. The main enterprise achieved a qualified success, the most northern ferry being able to work for nearly an hour before it was stopped by very deadly rifle and machine gun fire, and we established a small post on the right bank. When day broke, this party of 70 of the Loyal

North Lanchashires had driven off two determined counter-attacks, and were still maintaining themselves in a small loop of the river bund. For the next 22 hours, until the passage of the river had been completely forced, the detachment held on gallantly in its isolated position under constant close fire from the surrounding buildings, trenches and gardens, being subjected to reverse as well as enfilade fire from distant points along the right bank.

33. On the 8th a bridge was constructed across the Tigris, half a mile below Bowi, and the cavalry followed by a portion of Lieutenant-General Cobbe's force crossed to the right bank in order to drive the enemy from positions which our aeroplanes reported that he had occupied about Shawa Khan, and north-west of that place, covering Baghdad from the south and south-west. The advance of our troops was much impeded by numerous nalas and water-cuts which had to be ramped to render them passable. During the forenoon of the 9th, Shawa Khan was occupied without much opposition and aeroplanes reported another position one and a half miles to the north-west and some six miles south of Baghdad as strongly held. Our attack against this developed later from the south and south-west in an endeavour to turn the enemy's right flank. The cavalry, which at first had been operating on our left flank, withdrew later as the horses needed water, but our infantry were still engaged before this position when darkness fell, touch with the enemy being kept up by means of patrols and the advance was resumed as soon as indications of his withdrawal were noticed.

On the morning of the 10th our troops were again engaged with the Turkish rearguard within three miles of Baghdad and our cavalry patrols reached a point two miles west of Baghdad Railway Station, where they were checked by the enemy's fire. A gale and blinding dust storm limited vision to a few yards, and under these conditions reconnaissance and co-ordination of movements became difficult. The dry wind and dust and the absence of water away from the river added greatly to the discomfort of the troops and animals. About midnight patrols reported the enemy to be retiring. The dust storm was still raging, but following the Decauville railway as a guide our troops occupied Baghdad Railway Station at 5-55 A.M. and it was ascertained that the enemy on the right bank had retired upstream of Baghdad. Troops detailed in advance occupied the city, and the cavalry moved on Kadhimain, some four miles north-west of Baghdad, where they secured some prisoners.

34. On the left bank of the Tigris Lieutenant-General Marshall had during the 9th elaborated preparations for forcing the passage of the Dialah. At 4 A.M. on the 10th the crossing began at two points a mile apart and met with considerable opposition, but by 7 A.M. the East Lancashires and Wiltshires were across and had linked up with the detachment of Loyal North Lancashires which had so heroically held its ground there. Motor lighters carrying infantry to attack the enemy's right flank above the mouth of the Dialah grounded lower down the river and took no part in the operation. The bridge across the Dialah was completed by noon and our troops pushing steadily on drove the enemy from the riverside villages of Saidah, Dibaiyi and Qararah—the latter strongly defended with machine guns—and finally faced the enemy's last position covering Baghdad along the Tel Muhammad Ridge. These operations had resulted in the capture of 300 prisoners and a large quantity of arms, ammunition and equipment, whilst severe loss had been inflicted on the enemy in killed and wounded, over 300 of his dead being found by our troops.

During the night of the 10th-11th close touch with the enemy was maintained by patrols, and at 1-30 A.M. on the 11th it was reported that the Turks were retiring. The Tel Muhammad position was at once occupied and patrols pushed beyond it, but contact with the enemy was lost in the dust storm. Early on the 11th Lieutenant-General Marshall advanced rapidly on Baghdad and entered the city amid manifestations of satisfaction on the part of the inhabitants. A state of anarchy had existed for some hours, Kurds and Arabs looting the bazaars and setting fire indiscriminately at various points. Infantry guards provided for in advance were however soon on the spot, order was restored without difficulty, and the British flag hoisted over the city. In the afternoon the gunboat flotilla, proceeding upstream in 'line ahead' formation, anchored off the British Residency, and the two forces under Lieutenant-Generals Marshall and Cobbe provided for the security of the approaches to the city being disposed one on either bank of the river. For over a fortnight before we entered Baghdad the enemy had been removing stores and articles of military value, and destroying property which he could not remove, but an immense quantity of booty, part damaged, part undamaged, remained. This included guns, machine guns, rifles, ammunition, machinery, railway workshops, railway material, rolling stock, ice and soda-water plant, pipes, pumps, cranes, winches, signal and telegraph equipment, and hospital accessories In the Arsenal were found among some cannon of considerable antiquity all the guns (rendered useless by General Townshend) which fell into the enemy's hands at the capitulation of Kut in April 1916.

THE OPERATIONS SUBSEQUENT TO THE FALL OF BAGHDAD.

From March 12th to 31st.

35. With the near approach of the flood season it was now necessary to obtain control of the river bunds upstream of the city, and Yahudie and Kaisirin on the left bank of the Tigris, 20 and 28 miles respectively above Baghdad, were consequently occupied on the 13th and 14th. On the right bank of the Tigris the retreating enemy had entrenched a strong position south of Mushaidie Railway Station, some 20 miles north of Baghdad. Lieutenant-General Cobbe was entrusted with the mission of securing the bunds on this bank, and on the night of the 13th-14th a column marched from Baghdad and reached Tadjiye station by daybreak on the 14th. The Turkish position was some seven miles in extent, extending from the river in a north-easterly direction towards the railway which runs due north and south. The western flank rested on successive lines of sandhills, which lie on both sides of the railway line, whilst east of the railway the defensive system centred in two dominant heights, linked to each other and to the river by a series of trenches, nalas and irrigation cuts. In front lay a bare flat plain, whilst undulating ground behind gave the enemy concealment for manœuvre and cover for reserves It was decided to attack the Turkish right flank with the whole force, as such a movement aimed directly at the enemy's railhead and general reserve would turn the main position east of the railway.

Our troops advanced on both sides of the railway supported by artillery barrage, whilst the cavalry operating on the western flank took the enemy's position in enfilade and in reverse with rifle and machine gun fire. Communication was maintained with our gunboats which co-operated by shelling points in the Turkish line. Ridge after ridge was captured in spite of infantry and artillery fire, which was sometimes intense, until the Black Watch and Gurkhas by a brilliant charge carried the main position, inflicting severe casualties on the enemy. Fighting continued after nightfall and at Mushaidie Station the enemy made his last stand, but the Black Watch and Gurkhas rushed the station at midnight and pursued the enemy for half a mile beyond.

The enemy's flight was now so rapid that touch was not obtained again, and on the 16th our aeroplanes reported stragglers over a depth of 20 miles, the nearest being 25 miles north of Mushaidie. These operations had involved continuous marching and stiff fighting, almost without a break, for two nights and a day, in which our troops displayed fine endurance and determination.

36. On the 14th a post was established on the right bank of the Dialah, opposite Baqubah, 30 miles north-east of Baghdad, which was held by the enemy. On the night of the 17th-18th a column effected a surprise crossing over the Dialah five miles below Baqubah, and our troops entered the town the following morning inflicting some casualties on the Turkish detachment and capturing some prisoners and stores. Baqubah is the centre of a district rich in supplies and its occupation was essential as a preliminary to further operations to assist our Russian Allies, who were advancing through Persia by way of Kermanshah and Kasr-i-Shirin, with the 13th Turkish Corps falling back on Kifri before them.

37. On the 19th our troops occupied Felujah, 35 miles west of Baghdad, on the Euphrates, driving out the Turkish garrison which retired up the right bank of the Euphrates. The occupation of Felujah, with Nasariyah already in our possession, gave us control over the middle Euphrates from both ends.

38. The arrival of our Allies at Khanikin was now momentarily expected, and a column was concentrated at Baqubah with the object of holding the enemy's retreating columns to their ground till such time as the Russians could come up or alternatively of inflicting loss on them should they weaken their front and endeavour to cross the Dialah. This column moved out on the 20th and occupied Shahraban on the 23rd, the enemy having retired on the previous night. A few prisoners and large supplies of grain were captured. Five miles to the north-east of Shahraban lies a commanding ridge of Jebel Hamrin where the enemy held a strong position covering Kizil Robat and the road to Khanikin, and here our troops were actively engaged with him from the 24th until the end of the month.

On the right bank of the Dialah the enemy also held a position along the Jebel Hamrin about Deli Abbas and Lambaral covering the approaches to the Kifri road. The cavalry was instructed to work up the right bank of the Dialah so as to co-operate with our troops on the left bank in obstructing the retirement of the Turkish forces.

On the left bank of the Dialah our progress was slow owing to the difficult nature of the country, which is intersected by canals and deep nalas, some of them full of water, but on the night of the 24th-25th part of the force moved forward to test the strength of the enemy in our front. By daybreak our infantry had established itself in the foothills and the advance to the main ridge began. Hostile piquets were driven in and the lower crest of the hills was gained, but beyond this another crest rose 2,500 yards away and the intervening country was much broken with hillocks and ravines. The advance continued towards the line held by the enemy about 1,000 yards north of the captured crest, but as he now began to show considerable strength it was deemed inadvisable to press the advance further. The subsequent withdrawal of the column was followed up closely by the enemy, but several strong attacks were beaten off and an attempted charge against our right flank by his cavalry was dispersed by rifle and gun fire. During the withdrawal the enemy, who necessarily came out into the open, suffered heavily and the offensive enterprise of his infantry slackened visibly as the day wore on. The Manchesters specially distinguished themselves by their gallantry and steadiness on this occasion.

The advance of our Allies had been delayed in a difficult pass east of Khanikin, mainly owing to weather conditions, and in consequence up to the close of the period under review we had not gained touch with them, but our column still maintained its position, harassing the Turkish retreat and securing a number of prisoners.

39. About the 26th there were indications that a converging movement was being made by part of the 13th Corps down the right bank of the Dialah from Deli Abbas and by the 18th Corps along the left bank of the Tigris from Shatt-el-Adhaim against our troops in the vicinity of Deltawa, apparently with the intention of assisting the withdrawal of the 13th Corps from before the Russians. A column was accordingly concentrated at Khan Nahrwan to deal with the Shatt-el-Adhaim force, whilst the cavalry contained the Deli Abbas force. On the 27th the enemy made a determined attempt to move down the right bank of the Dialah towards Deltawa but our cavalry, skilfully handled in some difficult ground, resisted the enemy's advance from successive positions, inflicting severe losses, and finally checked the forward movement that evening. Next day the enemy fell back towards Deli Abbas followed up by our cavalry.

The Turkish force from Shatt-el-Adhaim held an entrenched position between Dogameh and Himma, and during the night of the 28th-29th our troops deployed for attack in suitable positions. The attack was well pressed from the east and north till about midday, when the mirage became so bad that artillery support was impracticable. Later in the evening it was renewed, and in spite of fierce counter-attacks we secured the greater part of the enemy's position, although he still held a few trenches when darkness fell. His losses had evidently been severe, as we buried over 190 bodies, and we took many prisoners, whilst the enemy retired during the night behind the Shatt-el-Adhaim.

The total number of prisoners taken during the period December 13th to March 31st was 7,921.

OPERATIONS ON OTHER FRONTS.

August 28th to March 31st.

40. The period with which this despatch deals was devoid of important incidents on the Karun and Bushire fronts. On the Euphrates front in the early part of September, guerilla warfare was commenced against our camps and patrols round As-Sahilan. Immediate steps were taken to crush this hostile concentration before it became formidable, and on September 11th a column moved out from Nasariyah which destroyed the towers and fortifications of As-Sahilan. Our comparatively small column was opposed by some 5,000 enemy irregulars who fought boldly, but the steady behaviour of our troops gave them no opening and before midday the enemy withdrew, having lost as it was afterwards ascertained 436 killed and some 800 wounded. This prompt lesson had an excellent effect round Nasariyah and no further hostilities of any importance occurred during the period under review. The only Turkish regular detachment on the Euphrates was a small one at Samawa and when Baghdad fell this detachment retreated to Felujah, whence it was subsequently ejected by our troops from Baghdad.

41. On the lines of communications during the same period the daily routine of our defence troops was only occasionally broken by raids, which were suitably dealt with by our posts and mobile columns.

42. Owing to the attention drawn to the Tigris front by the severe fighting in progress there, the situation had remained comparatively quiet. Considerable progress however was made in many ways. This was especially the case of Nasariyah, where much was done to develope the administration of the town and the surrounding country, whilst at Ahwaz various projects were carried into effect which placed our position in that neighbourhood on a more satisfactory basis. Considerable credit is due to the commanders on the Euphrates, Karun and Bushire fronts and on the lines of communication defences for the manner in which they maintained peaceful conditions in their neighbourhood and the efficiency of their troops.

SUMMARY.

43. The above is a brief record of the operations carried out during seven months by the army in Mesopotamia; the first three and a half months a period of preparation, the last three and a half months one of action. During the latter the fighting has been strenuous and continuous and the strain imposed upon all ranks, both at the front and on the lines of communication, severe. But they have responded whole-heartedly to every call that has been made upon them and their reward has been the measure of their success. The nature of the operations has been as varied as it has been complex, and the training of the troops has been tested, first in the fierce hand to hand fighting in trench warfare round Kut and Sannaiyat, and, later, in the more open battles which characterised the operations in the Dahra Bend, the passage of the Tigris, the advance on Baghdad, and the subsequent actions. From this ordeal they have emerged with a proud record and have dealt the enemy a series of stinging blows, the full significance of which will not be easily effaced. British and Indian troops working side by side have vied with each other in their efforts to close with the enemy and all ranks have been imbued throughout with that offensive spirit which is the soldier's finest jewel.

The operations have involved long hours and strenuous work, as well as great responsibilities, for commanders and their staffs, but by sheer hard work and a determination to succeed they have risen superior to every obstacle and compelled success.

As regards the regimental commanders, and the regimental officers, warrant and non-commissioned officers and men, it is not easy to do justice to their sterling performances. In spite of the youth and consequent lack of training and experience among some of their officers and non-commissioned officers, leadership has never faltered, whilst all ranks by their heroism, endurance, and devotion to duty have almost daily affirmed their superiority over their opponents in the bitterest struggles. Each difficulty encountered seemed but to steel the determination to overcome it. It may then be truly said that not only have the traditions of these ancient British and Indian regiments been in safe keeping in the hands of their present representatives, but that these have even added fresh lustre to the records on their time-honoured scrolls. Where fighting was almost daily in progress it is difficult to particularise, but the fierce encounters west of the Hai, the passages of the Tigris and Dialah and the final storming of the Sannaiyat position may perhaps be mentioned as typical of all that is best in the British and Indian soldier.

For the success achieved the fighting spirit of the troops has been mainly responsible, but the dash and gallantry of individuals and units have been welded into a powerful weapon by that absolute sympathy which has existed between both services and all branches.

To the Royal Navy the thanks of the Army are due for the thorough way in which they carried out somewhat restricted but none the less important duties during the earlier part of this period. The fact that the enemy barred the way at Sannaiyat necessitated their work being at first limited to assisting in the protection of our water communications, co-operating with our detachment on the Euphrates front and occasionally shelling the enemy's position at Sannaiyat, where the Naval Kite Balloon Section rendered good service in observation work. Their opportunity came later, when after the passage of the Tigris they pressed forward in pursuit and rendered the brilliant and substantial services described above.

The work of the cavalry has been difficult. The flat terrain intersected with nalas obstructed movement without providing cover and the state of the country after heavy rains made progress even for short distances laborious. The absence of water, too, away from the river, limited its radius of action. Nevertheless its reconnaissance work and the blows delivered against the enemy's communications helped in no small way to bring about that dissipation of his forces which was so essential to our success, and the pressure applied after the passage of the Tigris to the retreating enemy was instrumental in completing his final rout.

The unison in which artillery, infantry, machine gun corps and air service worked has been admirable. The combination of irresistible gallantry and devotion to duty evinced by the Infantry and Machine Gun Corps was equalled by the determination of the artillery to render their comrades the closest support. Batteries were pushed forward to points within effective range of the enemy's riflemen, and the forward observing officers and their detachments, in order to obtain the best results for their guns in this flat and difficult country, were always to be found with the leading lines of infantry. The intense but methodical fire of our guns formed a screen of shells under which our infantry advanced boldly, whilst the accuracy of our gun fire was largely assisted by the excellent observation work done by the Royal Flying Corps. The activity of the latter throughout the operations was unbounded in co-operation with artillery, air combats, reconnaissance, raiding, bombing and photography. The Royal Flying Corps at the outset wrested the command of the air from the enemy and subsequently by skill and ceaseless energy maintained its superiority, in spite of the heavy strain thrown on personnel and machines.

Closely allied to the infantry throughout the fighting and especially during the period of trench warfare were the Field companies, Sapper and Miner companies and Pioneer battalions. Their work was as daring as it was tireless, and was of inestimable value in planning, supplementing and improving by their technical knowledge the work done by the infantry.

Owing to the conditions under which fighting has taken place a heavy strain has been placed upon the Signal Service and Telegraph Department and especially during the rapid advance after the passage of the Tigris. That the communications of the Army were so well maintained testifies to the efficiency and high sense of duty among all ranks in both branches. Their work, especially in the case of those with advanced formations, was frequently carried out under conditions of considerable danger, in which conspicuous gallantry was frequently needed and displayed

The zeal and scientific knowledge evinced by the Field Survey Department is best exemplified by the fact that since the commencement of the campaign accurate surveys of an area of over 13,000 square miles of country have been produced which have been of the greatest value to the Army.

44. One of the features peculiar to this compaign is the length of the lines of communications which we have necessarily had to adopt. In consequence the difficulties by which the administrative services and departments, both in the field and on the lines of communications have been confronted have been exceptional. The success or failure of the operations has so largely depended upon their efficiency that a substantial measure of credit is due to the directors and their assistants and all ranks of those services and departments who by capable methods and unwearied energy have surmounted all obstacles and regularly met the needs of the fighting troops with ample supplies, munitions and stores, and have been the means of providing every comfort obtainable for the sick and wounded.

As in the case of the fighting troops the interdependence of these services, and departments has necessitated the closest co-operation and equally successful has been the result. We have relied upon three classes of transport:—river, rail, and road; the latter being further sub-divided into motor and animal transport. The work in all cases has been peculiarly heavy. The newly formed Inland Water Transport Directorate had first to fill its ranks and then develop its organisation and provide for its many indispensable requirements, but the personnel, making light of those very real obstacles to rapid progress, worked unceasingly with the result that night and day an endless chain of river-craft passed up and down the river, thereby assuring the maintenance of the troops at the front.

The rainy season was one of continuous anxiety for the railways (especially as regards the light line between Sheikh Sa'ad and Atab) and the road transport. Every ingenuity possible was, however, brought to bear on the problem, and vigour and determination on the part of all concerned once more carried the day.

To the Directorate of Port Administration and Conservancy much credit is due for the development of the Port of Basrah on an efficient basis and for the method and smoothness with which the vast fleet of steamers which has served this expedition has been handled, as well as for the provision of many facilities in connection therewith. The monthly statistics bear eloquent testimony to the efficiency of this department.

The excellent work done by the Director of Sea Transport and his assistants also deserves more than passing recognition in view of the amount of shipping involved.

Our long line of communications has complicated the delivery of supplies and ordnance stores at the front considerably. Although large stocks of foodstuffs, munitions and stores were available at the base early in the autumn, accurate calculations and ceaseless activity on the part of all ranks were required to ensure their delivery to the troops punctually and in due proportion. Difficult as the problem was whilst the Army was sedentary in the vicinity of Sannaiyat and Kut, it became more and more complex as the advance proceeded. The strain on the personnel was increasingly severe, and the fact that throughout this period the troops at the front were well maintained in all respects constitutes a fine record for the Supply Service and Ordnance Department.

In dealing with the problems at the base and on the lines of communication, the responsibilities of the Works Directorate have been very heavy, but the many problems have been resolutely handled with that resourcefulness and success which are so characteristic of the Royal Engineers. Road making, water supply, and building and reclamation work at the base alone have reached vast dimensions and have demanded constant attention and thorough organisation.

Since the termination of the hot weather the health of the troops has been uniformly good, and our well-equipped hospitals have been more than adequate to meet the calls made upon them by sick patients. Throughout the operations the evacuation of the wounded was carried out on model lines and the arrangements made for the comfort and rapid transfer of patients from the field units to the hospitals on the lines of communication reflect much credit on those concerned. Whilst those on the lines of communication have done their share efficiently, the work of the Medical Services at the front has maintained its high reputation. During the operations the strain thrown upon all has been heavy and the courage and devotion to duty displayed by the personnel on the battlefield has only been equalled by the zeal and energy of those in the field units. In this connection the valuable services rendered by the consulting surgeons and physicians demand special mention, whilst the thanks of the Army are due to the nursing sisters for their indefatigable services in tending the sick and wounded. These ladies have by their devoted work under difficult conditions of climate and surroundings set an example of which they may well be proud.

The wastage of horses during continuous operations under trying conditions has necessarily been large, but the Remount Department has, though assisted by few facilities and faced by many obstacles, by practical methods, foresight and adaptability, successfully met the demands made upon it.

Sickness and battle casualties have placed a strain upon the resources of the Veterinary Department which has been met by wise anticipation and considerable efficiency.

The chaplains—always to the fore where danger calls—have been untiring in their attention to the spiritual needs of the troops and in their ministrations to the sick and wounded, not only in the field ambulances and hospitals, but also on the battlefield.

The Postal Service has been handicapped by the long distances to be covered and by the fact that other articles requiring carriage claimed precedence in order of urgency. It has had heavy mails to deal with and its duties have been well carried out.

45. I should like further to express my thanks to those individuals and organisations which, though not strictly military, have rendered valuable services to the Army. Foremost amongst these I would mention the British Red Cross Society, which has worthily maintained its splendid record throughout this campaign. The sterling work performed by its personnel, and its bountiful provision of motor launches, motor ambulances, and gifts, have been the means of alleviating much suffering.

The ceaseless labours of the organisers and committees of the various War Gifts Societies both in England and in India, and the liberality of the subscribers to these funds have contributed largely to the comfort and well-being of the troops, especially in regard to their recreations, and our heartfelt gratitude is due to them all.

The officials and personnel of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company have displayed courtesy and willingness to assist and have given us facilities which have been of great value to our troops.

The Young Men's Christian Association has been indefatigable in its exertions to enliven and improve the surroundings of the troops, and has with my approval opened additional branches throughout the country which have been immensely appreciated.

46. The thanks of the Army are due for the prompt manner in which our necessarily large demands have been sent overseas from England, India and Egypt. This factor has contributed in no small measure to the successes achieved.

47. During the operations the commanders have had great responsibility and have justified fully their selection for the posts they hold.

Lieutenant-General W. R. Marshall, K.C.B., has commanded his troops with determination and judgment. His quiet imperturbable manner, his coolness and decision inspire confidence among his subordinates, whilst his bold methods and intelligent appreciation and rapid execution of orders have been of the greatest value.

Lieutenant-General A. S. Cobbe, V.C., K.C.B., D.S.O., has commanded with marked ability. Always methodical and thorough in his plans, he brings to bear upon their execution a complete knowledge of the details of his profession. These qualities, added to a thorough grasp of the possibilities and limitations of the various arms, have enabled him to make the most of his opportunities wherever severe fighting has been involved.

48. To my Staff at General Headquarters and on the lines of communication (including the lines of communication defences) as well as to the technical advisers attached, my warmest thanks are due for the wholehearted and vigorous support which I have received from them throughout, and for the efficient manner in which they have discharged their functions.

Major-General A. W. Money, K.C.B., C.S.I., Chief of the General Staff, has carried out his responsible duties most competently. He has not spared himself in giving me every assistance, and his knowledge of Indian and indeed Eastern conditions has frequently been of great value to me.

Of Major-General G. F. MacMunn, K.C.B., D.S.O., Inspector-General of Communications, it is not too much to say that his responsibilities have been immense. The repeated calls made on him by me during these protracted operations have never once failed to elicit a satisfactory response, and the thoroughness and elasticity of his organisation was never better exemplified than in the efficiency maintained on the lines of communication during the rapid advance on Baghdad, and subsequent to our arrival at that city. Optimistic by nature, he readily brushes aside obstacles whether imaginary or real.

49. This despatch would not be complete without a reference to the valuable services rendered to the Army by Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Percy Cox, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., and the political officers working under his direction. His advice has been invaluable to me on many occasions, and the tranquil state of the country from Baghdad to Basrah at the present time is in itself an additional testimony to his already well-established reputation.

50. A list giving the names of those officers, warrant and non-commissioned officers and men, whose services are deemed deserving of special mention, will follow.

NOTE (1).—Where a person or firm mentioned in the List has more than one address in the country, or group of countries under which the name of the person or firm appears, all dealings in that country, or in any country in the group, with such person or firm are prohibited, even in cases where one only of the addresses or one only of the countries is specifically mentioned.

NOTE (2).—Trading is prohibited under the Trading with the Enemy Proclamations of 25th June, and 10th November, 1915 (which were republished as Notifications in this Department Nos 122 I-W. and 861-W., dated respectively the 24th July and 11th December 1915), with any person or firm of enemy nationality resident or carrying on business in China, Siam, Persia, Morocco, Liberia or Portuguese East Africa. Persons or firms are therefore prohibited from trading with any person or firm of enemy nationality in any of those countries, even though such person or firm is not mentioned by name in the Statutory List.

NOTE (3).—It is not unusual for firms in Holland and the Netherland East Indies to be registered under names commencing with descriptive terms such as "Handel Maatschappy" (Trading Company) or "Naamlooze Venootschap" (Limited Liability Company). In such cases it has been found more convenient to publish the firm under its proper name followed by the general descriptive term "Handel Maatschappy" or "Naamlooze Venootschap" (N.V.) as in the case of an English company. For instance Handel Maatschappy van den Berg and Company, and Naamlooze Venootschap de Komeet v/h Dumoncean Freres will be found under "Berg" and "Komeet" respectively, and not under "Handel" or "Naamlooze."

REPORT OF THE CHIEF OFFICER ON THE WORKING OF THE CALCUTTA FIRE BRIGADE FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST MARCH 1917.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 1709M.—The 17th September 1917.—The following is published for general information under section 41 of the Licensed Warehouse and Fire Brigade Act (Bengal Act I of 1893).

L. S. S. O'MALLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. $\frac{\text{L. B. } 49\text{-}17}{655}$, dated Calcutta, the $\frac{1\text{st}}{4\text{th}}$ September 1917.

From—R. CLARKE, ESQ., Commissioner of Police, Calcutta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

IN accordance with paragraph 41, section 2 of the Licensed Warehouse and Fire Brigade Act (I of 1893), I have the honour to submit herewith the report of the Chief Officer on the working of the Calcutta Fire Brigade for the year ended 31st March 1917.

No. $\frac{F.B\ 16-17}{162}$, dated Calcutta, the 24th July 1917.

From—F. A. WESTBROOK, ESQ., Chief Officer, Fire Brigade, Calcutta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department (through R. Clarke, Esq., Offg. Commissioner of Police, Calcutta).

I HAVE the honour to present the following report on the working of the Fire Brigade for the financial year ended the 31st March 1917.

I held charge of the Brigade throughout the year up to December 6, 1916, when I proceeded to Mesopotamia on deputation to advise on the measures necessary for the protection of I. E. F. " D " against fire.

2. Financial statement.—The statement of the receipts and expenditure and payment made by the municipalities within the jurisdiction of the Fire Brigade Act, I of 1893, is given in Appendix I.

3. Fires, etc.—The total number of fires or supposed fires dealt with by the Fire Brigade during the year under review is 455, being an increase of 80 above the previous year, and resulting in—

Fires	...	335 (323 in 1915-16).
False alarms	...	108 (42 in 1915-16).
Calls for special service	...	12 (10 in 1915-16).

In connection with the false alarms it is unsatisfactory to note that no less than 69 were assumed to be given wilfully.

Fifteen fires occurred in premises licensed under the Licensed Warehouse and Fire Brigade Act I of 1893, as compared with 17 in the previous year. The nature of the trades requiring licenses under this Act are enumerated in Appendix XVII.

On	1 day	8	fires or supposed fires occurred	...	8
,,	1 ,,	7	ditto	ditto	... 7
,,	5 days	5	ditto	ditto	... 25
,,	13 ,,	4	ditto	ditto	... 52
,,	27 ,,	3	ditto	ditto	... 81
,,	82 ,,	2	ditto	ditto	... 164
,,	118 ,,	1	ditto	ditto	... 118
				Total	... 455

Summaries are given in the Appendix showing—

The districts in which fires or supposed fires occurred (Appendix III).
The number of fires on every day and month throughout the year (Appendix IV).
Daily and hourly summary of fires or supposed fires (Appendix V).

The actual number of calls received during the year is 639 (527 in 1915-16), which figure includes several instances where more than one call was received for the same fire. The means by which these calls were transmitted to the Brigade are given in Appendix II.

4. Fire loss.—The damage caused by fire and water during the year amounts to Rs. 13,17,495 (Rs. 5,02,699 in 1916-17), which is above the average for the past eight years (see Appendix XVIII).

The principal reason for this increase is a series of large jute fires which took place during the months of November, December and January. These fires occurred in the Cossipore-Chitpur Municipality and the neighbouring district, and involved a loss of about 11½ lakhs. It is unsatisfactory to note that in many of these cases there was delay in giving information to the Fire Brigade.

Damage amounting to 4½ lakhs caused by fire within a radius of 6 miles, but not within the jurisdiction proper of the Brigade, is included in the above figures. Under Government Notification No. 1850 T.—M. of the 5th August 1906, these fires were attended by the Brigade.

The fire-loss in the city of Calcutta and the municipalities (other than Cossipore-Chitpur) protected by the Fire Brigade is considerably below the average.

The average damage per fire during the current year is Rs. 3,933 as compared with Rs. 7,035 for the past eight years.

Summaries are given in the Appendix showing—

Damage caused by fire, etc., in the various districts (Appendix VI).
Classification of fires and calls (Appendix VII).
Means by which fires were extinguished (Appendix VIII).
Causes of fires and buildings affected (Appendix XV).
Comparative statement for the past nine years (Appendix XVIII).

5. Fire Reports.—Short reports of fires of Rs. 1,000 damage and over are given in Appendix IX.

6. Appliances.—Appendix X shows the present distribution of the principal appliances in use by the Brigade, and Appendix XI gives the number of times each appliance has been turned out in response to the fire calls, with monthly figures.

It is estimated that motor appliances travelled 3,750 miles and horse-drawn appliances 287 miles during the year in responding to and returning from calls.

Motor Fire Engine No. 3, which was sent to England for repairs, was returned in a satisfactory condition on 9th September 1916 and was duly placed in commission.

Orders have been placed with Messrs. Merryweather & Sons, Ltd., and Messrs. Leyland & Co. for new motor fire-engines, but delivery has not yet been effected.

The various appliances have been kept up to the required state of efficiency chiefly in the Brigade workshops, and the usual boiler surveys have been made by the Government Inspector and certificates granted.

It is hoped that delivery of the new floating fire-engine ordered by the Port Commissioners will soon be effected, as the capabilities of the present fire-float are not up to the requirements.

As mentioned in previous reports, the floating fire-engine is not immediately under the control of the Fire Brigade, except when actually at work at fires, therefore efficient working and co-operation cannot always be obtained. It is hoped that arrangements will be made for all floating fire-engines to be placed directly under the charge of the Fire Brigade.

7. Fire Stations.—Appendix XII gives the number of times each station has been turned out in response to fire calls, together with monthly figures.

Headquarters are still situated in the premises temporarily hired from the Samavaya Corporation, Limited. A suitable site has now been selected and plans for permanent headquarters are being prepared. New headquarters are urgently required, as the present building is unsatisfactorily located and is very congested.

During the year under review no important alteration has been made to any of the existing stations.

8. Staff.—The total strength of the Brigade is 219 as compared with 221 at the commencement of the year.

The general conduct and discipline has been good. Many changes have taken place in the personnel owing to men proceeding on active service, thus a considerable amount of extra work has been thrown upon those men who have remained in the Brigade, not only at fires, but also in training new recruits.

As previously recorded, difficulty is experienced in recruiting a sufficiently good class of Indians at the present pay. Although the cost of living in Calcutta has increased and the duties of firemen are becoming more arduous, the pay has not correspondingly increased. The same remarks apply to the European staff.

One man has been granted a certificate to drive and take charge of motor fire-engines, and two men have passed examinations in proficiency in the management and care of steam fire-engines.

9. Fatalities and Accidents.—Short details of fires and calls involving loss of life or accidents are given in Appendix XIV.

The total fatalities are 10 as compared with 10 in the previous year. Of these 8 were cases of suicide by burning.

The practice of pouring kerosine oil on to a fire to make it burn up is still prevalent, and has been the cause of numerous accidents.

Many minor injuries have been attended to by the members of the Fire Brigade with the first-aid materials carried on all fire appliances.

10. Horses.—Sixteen horses were in service at the commencement of the year. Two have been cast and sold as unfit for further work. One horse was treated at the Bengal Veterinary College and was discharged as unfit for Fire Brigade work and was sold as stated above, and the other was sold as too old for further service. Two horses have been purchased during the year, leaving a total of 16 at the close of the year.

11. Water-supply.—In several instances difficulty has been experienced in obtaining water for fire-extinguishing purposes, and consequently some fires have attained serious proportions which might otherwise have been prevented. These remarks particularly apply to Howrah, Chitpur, Garden Reach and Maniktola, where unfiltered water mains are still unprovided, and the filtered water mains are not fitted with fire hydrants. For the protection of these areas reliance has been placed on the ponds and tanks, but as these are being filled up on sanitary grounds a serious state of affairs is accentuated.

The water used for fire-extinguishing is principally obtained from the unfiltered water mains, but owing to the comparative low pressure fire-engines have to be used to augment this pressure in a large percentage of cases.

Improvement of the mains and upkeep of hydrants continues, and the Water Department men attached to the Fire Brigade have been useful in assisting in certain cases to obtain a sufficient quantity of water.

The provision of duplicate sets of pumps for the unfiltered water system needs consideration, as when the existing machinery has to be overhauled, flues cleaned, etc., the water has to be shut off, thus leaving parts of the city unprotected.

I am pleased to take this opportunity of thanking the officers of the Water Department of the Calcutta Corporation for their endeavours to improve the supply, and for their prompt attention to any complaints which have been made.

12. Street Fire Alarms, Telephones and Electrical Communications.—Appendix II shows the means by which fire calls have been transmitted to the Fire Brigade.

Considerable progress has been made to facilitate the rapid transmission of fire calls, and in all 125 street fire-alarms are now connected.

Notwithstanding this, in many instances undue delay in calling the Fire Brigade has been experienced, especially in connection with some of the jute fires. It is, however, satisfactory to note that such cases are gradually decreasing in number.

My thanks are again due to the Bengal Telephone Company for their continued keen interest and efficiency in all matters appertaining to Fire Brigade work.

Appendix XVI gives the position of street fire-alarms erected and about to be erected.

13. Inspection Department, Theatres and places of Public Amusements.—A considerable amount of work has been carried out in endeavouring to safeguard the public amusement, but I regret to report again that the result is still unsatisfactory. As mentioned in previous reports, it is hoped that the new by-laws for the regulations of theatres, etc., will shortly be approved and enforced, when no doubt adequate measures will be adopted and the various premises provided with safeguards commensurate with the risks involved.

The fire which occurred at the Empire Theatre on 16th August 1916 is of particular interest, as undoubtedly the private fire appliances which were installed in this theatre about three years ago under the direction of the Fire Brigade were the means by which a much more serious fire was prevented.

The fire originated in a room where bioscope films were stored. This room opens directly on to the O. P. flies, but is protected with an iron door. Hydrants were got to work by the Fire Brigade from the flies, and the fire was then stopped from reaching the stage; meanwhile two lines of hose were got to work from a motor fire-engine through a door leading to the front of the house and the fire was under control in a very few minutes. In all about 100,000 feet of bioscope films were burnt, also the contents of the room, but no structural damage occurred to the building.

14. General.—Much progress continues to be made in inspecting special fire risks, and as a result of such inspections, which are regularly and systematically carried out, the number of private appliances installed has considerably increased.

During the year under review 5,731 inspections (exclusive of theatres and places of public amusements) have been made.

Four hundred and sixty-two applications for licenses (see Appendix XVII) and complaints referring to license have been received and disposed of.

Three hundred and eleven prosecutions were instituted under sections 14 and 19 of Act I of 1893, which resulted in 232 persons being fined, aggregating in all Rs. 3,014; 36 persons were warned and discharged, 34 cases were withdrawn or filed, and 9 remained pending at the end of the year.

15. Firework licenses, etc.—During the year under review five licenses were granted for letting off fireworks under section 36, Act I of 1893.

Two persons have been prosecuted, convicted and fined for selling fireworks without license.

16. Jurisdiction.—The Calcutta Fire Brigade protects the municipalities of Calcutta, Cossipore-Chitpur, Howrah, Maniktola and Garden Reach, and may attend fires outside the boundaries of these municipalities (but not exceeding a radius of 6 miles from the Central Fire Station), provided that appliances can be spared and on payment of a prescribed fee. Appendix XIX gives the Government order relating to this, and the form which has to be signed prior to the Fire Brigade leaving the jurisdiction of the above municipalities.

The actual area protected by the Calcutta Fire Brigade is just over 113 square miles, and the population included in the same is about 1½ millions.

17. Office.—The work in this department is increasing, and additional staff is consequently required.

18. Map.—For economical purposes the map usually inserted in this report, showing the situation of fire-stations, fire-alarms, etc., and where fires have occurred, is omitted.

19. Ambulance Service.—The ambulance service which was inaugurated in January 1916 has done much useful work, and is fulfilling a need which previously was experienced in Calcutta.

Since the above date 2,379 calls have been dealt with, and the ambulance waggons have travelled about 13,600 miles.

The "Sunbeam" motor ambulance, which was presented by the St. John Ambulance Association, has been most satisfactory, and for seven months did the whole work of the department; but it was found that one machine was inadequate to respond to all the calls made for it, therefore with a commendable public spirit Messrs. Baldeo Das Jugal Kishore and Tara Chand Ghanashyam Dass realised these difficulties, and, with the view of increasing the utility of the service, generously offered to provide a second motor ambulance, which, although primarily intended for the convenience of wounded and invalid soldiers, can, when not engaged on that duty, respond to and be used for all calls in a similar manner to the existing motor ambulance.

At the Corporation meeting on 24th July 1916 this offer was accepted with thanks, and arrangements were made to make over the machine immediately and pay the cost of upkeep and initial expenses.

This motor ambulance is named "The Marwari" and is stationed at Halliday Street Fire Station. It was placed in commission on 4th August 1916, after being formally handed over to the service by Lady Carmichael, and has done a great deal of work in one of the most thickly populated districts of the city.

In July 1916 the St. John Ambulance Association also presented a "Pulmotor" to the Calcutta Motor Ambulance service. This machine is designed for reviving cases of suspended animation such as occur in drowning, electric shock, suffocation, etc.

As will be seen from Appendix XX the work of this department is rapidly increasing and more ambulance waggons are urgently required. On 303 occasions both machines were engaged when calls were received, consequently delay in responding to such calls unavoidably occurred.

The ambulance service is financially maintained by Government and the Corporation of Calcutta, the former paying one-third of the cost of upkeep, and the latter two-thirds.

Ambulances are available at all hours for accidents and urgent cases of illness necessitating removal to hospital. These machines are not to be used for infectious cases, but the provision of one or more ambulances for this class of work is under consideration, and I trust, will shortly be provided, as the rapid removal of infectious cases to hospital must have a beneficial effect on the health of the population of Calcutta.

N.B.—Certain of the appendices referred to in the above report are not reprinted in the Gazette.

APPENDIX I.

Statement showing receipts and expenditure of the Fire Brigade for 1916-17.

The year opened with a balance of Rs. 82,860-12-2, and the receipts amounted to Rs. 2,25,407-3 and the total expenditure to Rs. 2,17,005-2-4, leaving a balance of Rs. 91,262-12-10 at the close of the year.

RECEIPTS.

The receipts show an increase of Rs. 9,265-3 over the estimate, due mainly to the credit of Rs. 9,219-4 to the fund on account of hire of fire engines requisitioned from outside the jurisdiction of the Calcutta Fire Brigade to extinguish fires.

EXPENDITURE.

Under head "Establishment" there was a decrease of Rs. 5,693-10-7. The savings accrued principally on the following heads :—

(1) Pay of Chief Officer—Rs. 2,919 due to non-debit of the Officer's pay for the last three months of the year, owing to his being on deputation to Basra.

(2) Pay of khalasis and grain compensation allowance—Rs. 1,969 owing to vacancies existing in the rank.

The total expenditure under head "Contingencies" amounted to Rs. 1,20,350-0-5 against a budget grant of Rs. 1,91,588, showing a decrease of Rs. 71,237-15-7. The savings include Rs. 56,788 provided in the budget for the purchase of (i) a combined appliance including fire escape, first-aid cylinder and pumps, (ii) a motor fire engine, (iii) canvas delivery hose, and (iv) a motor-car for the Chief Officer, which remained unexpended at the close of the year in consequence of the delay in manufacture of the engines and the hose in England owing to the war.

Under head "Other charges" there was an increase of Rs. 723-12-6 due to increased expenditure on water pressure.

The grand total of both sides of the account will be equal.

8. The closing balance in the bank column shall be compared with that shown in the bank pass-book of the Trust Fund, which the Administrator shall keep up to date.

The closing balance of the capital of the Trust Fund shall be compared with the list of securities borne on the registers of the Accountant-General, Bengal, which is published every year in the Calcutta Gazette, and the closing balance in the cash column by actual counting.

INVESTMENTS.

9. Investments on behalf of the Trust Fund shall be made in Government securities, or in Port Trust or Municipal Debentures only.

GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

The rules which shall govern the procedure relating to the undermentioned matters in connection with the Doveton Trust shall be the same as those contained in the articles of the Civil Account Code quoted against them :—

Endorsements	Articles 164-165.
Custody	Articles 166 (a), notes 1 and 2, and 1558.
Conversion and interest	Articles 166 (a) and (b), 167, 167A, 167B and 177.
Purchase or sale	Articles 168-169 and 143B (2).
Commission	Article 170.

The above articles shall be followed as if they were rules made under the Doveton Trust Act, 1914 (Bengal Act III of 1914).

REVENUE OF THE TRUST FUND.

10. (1) The Administrator of the Trust Fund shall exercise a constant scrutiny over the revenues of the Fund, and shall see that all moneys realized on account of the Trust Fund are credited at once in the cash-book, whether the realizations are remitted to the bank or not.

(2) All receipts shall be paid in at once for credit to the account for the Trust Fund at the bank, and shall not be used for the current expenditure of the Trust Fund.

11. (1) The bank column on the receipt side of the cash-book shall be utilized to exhibit all sums received on account of the Trust Fund, whether immediately paid into the bank or not.

(2) The cash column shall be used for the exhibition of transactions in connection with the imprest account only.

(3) Whenever the imprest is recouped, the amount recouped shall be shown by a debit of the amount in the bank column on the payment side of the cash-book, and a credit of the amount in the cash column on the receipt side.

(4) The column "Securities" on the receipt side shall be utilized to exhibit the nominal value of securities purchased on behalf of the Trust Fund, or obtained by donation, bequest, or otherwise.

PAYMENTS.

12. (1) Imprest may, when necessary, be drawn and held by the Administrator on his own authority. Payments on account of the Trust Fund shall be made either in cash out of the imprest, or by the issue of a cheque on the Bank of Bengal. In the former case the amount expended shall be shown in the cash column, and in the latter case in the bank column on the payment side of the cash-book.

(2) When the Administrator issues a cheque against his personal ledger account he shall initial the counterfoil as well as sign the cheque. The amount shall be written in words, both in the cheque and in the counterfoil.

13. (1) The Administrator shall see that all revenues of the Trust Fund are duly realized and credited in the cash-book, and that the expenditure made is strictly in accordance with the terms of the Trust. No payment shall be ordered except on a voucher duly signed by the person to whom the payment is to be made, stamped when necessary, and setting forth the particulars for which the money is due.

Explanation.—When a scholarship is paid to a student the mere receipt of the Principal of the institution to which the student belongs will not be a sufficient voucher for the disbursement of the money. The Principal shall present a regular bill for the scholarship to the Administrator, who will first check it and then, if it is found to be in order, shall endorse upon it a payment order thus :—

"Pay rupees (words) only, and debit the account to the Doveton Trust Fund".

The endorsement shall be signed by the Administrator and a cheque or cash issued in payment.

The Principal will then obtain a receipt from the recipient of the scholarship, countersign it, and forward it to the Administrator, who will file it in his guard-book as the voucher in support of the debit in the cash-book.

(2) The money-order commission for remitting money in payment of scholarships or grants-in-aid shall be payable from the Fund.

Vouchers.

14. Vouchers shall be taken (except for very petty charges for which a written detailed statement shall be kept) in support of every entry on the payment side of the cash-book. They shall be filed in a guard-book and numbered consecutively for the year in order of payment.

Annual Account.

15. As soon as possible after the 31st March in each year the Administrator shall render an annual account to the Local Government. The account shall be in Form No. II annexed, and shall be supplemented by two schedules, one of receipts and one of payments.

16. (1) In the schedules, the receipts and expenditure shall be classified under the following heads :—

Receipts.	Expenditure.
	Education.
Voluntary subscriptions.	Scholarships for elementary education.
Interest on securities.	Scholarships for advanced education.
Miscellaneous.	Scholarships for technical education.
	Grants-in-aid to institutions.
	Establishment.
	Miscellaneous.

(2) Any other heads may be prescribed to suit the circumstances of the Trust Fund.

17. The opening balance shall be carefully checked by the Administrator with the closing balance of the previous annual account, and the closing balance shall be verified as follows :—

(1) the securities, by a reference to the Accountant-General's published list (as set out in article 171 of the Civil Account Code) ;

(2) the amount of the balance in the bank column, by a certificate that the amount agrees with the balance shown in the bank pass-book of the Trust Fund, less amount of uncashed cheques, if any ;

(3) the cash, by a certificate of the Administrator that it was really in his possession on the 31st March.

18. No vouchers for expenditure are required to be submitted with the account, but the Administrator shall certify—

(1) that he has duly and carefully kept an account of the Trust Fund in the prescribed manner ;

(2) that he has carefully superintended both the receipts and expenditure of the Trust Fund, and believes that the latter is expedient and proper with reference to the objects of the Trust Fund and

(3) that he has, as far as possible, obtained receipts for his expenditure.

19. (1) The Administrator shall submit to the Local Government annually in the month of February a budget estimate showing the estimated receipts and expenditure for the ensuing financial year.

(2) The Local Government may either sanction this budget or make such modifications in it as may seem to them to be proper.

(3) The Administrator may incur expenditure in accordance with the budget as approved by the Local Government without further reference to Government, except in so far as such reference is otherwise required in the foregoing rules.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT, BENGAL.

NOTIFICATION.

IN 1873 the Government of Bengal, when establishing a scheme for the utilisation of that portion of the Mohsin Endowment Fund available for the development of education amongst the Mussalmans, set aside a certain amount to meet the cost of two-thirds of the fees of Moslem boys attending certain educational institutions. This concession has since been extended to many other high schools and colleges. When the grant for short-fee payments was originally made in 1873 the amount allotted was sufficient to meet two-thirds of the fees of all Moslem boys eligible for the concession. In 1895, when the income of the Mohsin Endowment Fund decreased owing to the reduction of the rates of interest of Government securities, it was decided that half the fees (instead of two-thirds) of all students in colleges and pupils in high schools should be paid from the Mohsin Fund. In order to compensate the Mohsin Fund for the decrease in income, Government from time to time also modified the scheme established in 1873 by undertaking to bear certain charges which were previously debited to the Mohsin Fund from provincial revenues. The number of Moslem students in colleges and pupils in high schools has now increased considerably, and although the amount for short-fee payments has also been increased, this amount will not meet any appreciable portion of the fees payable by all Moslem students and pupils in colleges and high schools. It has, therefore, been decided that the object of the grant will be much better attained by giving some material assistance to a few boys rather than by giving small sums to a large number of boys. The whole amount now available for short-fee payments has accordingly been converted into 75 college stipends of Rs. 5 each, 3 technical stipends of Rs. 5 each, 113 school stipends of Rs. 4 each, and 114 school stipends of Rs. 3 each, as detailed in the statement below. In consideration of the association which the late Haji Muhammad Mohsin, the founder of the endowment, had with Hooghly, some stipends have been reserved for the Hooghly College, Hooghly Collegiate School and Amalgamated Branch and Model School at Hooghly. Only poor students who are unable to provide for the expenses of their education will be eligible for these stipends; among those eligible on the ground of poverty, the stipends will be awarded in consideration of merit. No one who holds any Government or other scholarship or stipend will be eligible for these stipends.

PART VI.

Bills introduced in the Indian Legislative Council, Reports of Select Committees, presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 12th September 1917 :—

No. 15 OF 1917.

A Bill to give additional powers to Courts to deal in certain cases with usurious loans of money or grain.

WHEREAS it is expedient to give additional powers to Courts to deal in certain cases with usurious loans of money or grain ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Usurious Loans Act, 191 .

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) The Local Government may, by notification in the local official gazette, direct that it shall come into force in the whole or any part of the province from such date as it may specify in its notification.

Re opening of transactions.

2. (1) Where, in any proceeding, ex parte or otherwise, for the recovery of a loan whether of money or of grain made after the commencement of this Act, or for the enforcement of any agreement or security made or taken after the commencement of this Act, in respect of any such loan made either before or after the commencement of this Act, the Court is satisfied by evidence that the return to be made over and above what was actually lent, whether the same is charged or sought to be recovered specifically by way of interest or otherwise, is excessive, and that the transaction was as between the parties thereto substantially unfair, the Court may reopen the transaction and take an account between the parties, and may, notwithstanding any statement or settlement of account or any agreement purporting to close previous dealings and to create a new obligation, reopen any account already taken between them and relieve the debtor of all liability in respect of such excess, and if any such excess has been paid or returned or allowed in account, the Court may order the creditor to repay any sum which the Court considers to be repayable in respect thereof, and may set aside either wholly or in part or revise or alter any security given or agreement made in respect of any such loan, and if the creditor has parted with the security, may order him to indemnify the debtor in such manner and to such extent as the Court may deem just.

(2) (a) In this section "excessive" means in excess of that which the Court deems to be reasonable having regard to the risk incurred as it appeared or must be taken to have appeared to the creditor at the date of the loan and to the ordinary rate prevailing in the locality for loans of like character.

(b) In considering whether a return is excessive under this section the Court shall take into account any sums charged or paid for expenses, inquiries, fines, bonuses, premia, renewals or any other charges, and if compound interest is charged, the periods at which it is calculated and the total advantage which the creditor may reasonably be taken to have expected from the transaction.

(c) In considering the question of risk the Court shall take into account the presence or absence of security and the value thereof, if any, the financial condition of the debtor and the result of any previous money transactions of the debtor so far as the same were known or must be taken to have been known to the creditor.

(d) In considering whether a transaction was substantially unfair the Court shall take into account all circumstances materially affecting the relations of the parties at the time of the loan or tending to show that the transaction was unfair, including the necessities or supposed necessities of the debtor at the time of the loan so far as the same were known or must be taken to have been known to the creditor and the rate of interest charged.

(3) On any application relating to the admission or amount of a proof for money lent in any insolvency proceedings, the Court may exercise the like powers as may be exercised under this section when proceedings are taken for the recovery of a money loan.

(4) This section shall apply to any proceeding whatever its form may be, if such proceeding is substantially one for the recovery of a loan of money or grain or for the enforcement of any agreement or security in respect of any such loan.

(5) Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of any bona fide transferee or holder for a value without notice.

(6) Nothing in this section shall be construed as derogating from the existing powers or jurisdiction of any Court.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to prevent the Civil Courts being used for the purpose of enforcing harsh and unconscionable loans carrying interest at usurious rates. This subject has engaged the attention of the Government of India frequently in the past and in 1899 sections 16 and 19 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, were amended so as to enunciate more clearly the principle on which a contract can be avoided on the ground of undue influence.

These amendments had the effect of conferring on the Courts in India equitable jurisdiction in cases relating to usurious contracts in which the element of undue influence is established, but where undue influence cannot be established the result has been to emphasize the rigidity of section 2 of the Usury Laws Repeal Act (XXVIII of 1855), however exorbitant the demand, and however unconscionable the bargain.

Further there has been a tendency on the part of the Courts to place upon the word "unconscionable" in section 16 of the Indian Contract Act the technical meaning which it has acquired in English equity, and consequently to limit their own powers of interference.

Lastly the particular transaction before the Court is often merely one of a series and unless there is power to go behind it and examine antecedent agreements and attendant circumstances there is little hope of the Courts being able to come to an equitable decision.

The remedy proposed by this Bill is to empower the Courts on the lines of section 1 of the Money Lenders Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 51) to reopen transactions by way of money or grain loans in cases where the Court is satisfied (1) that the interest or other return is excessive and (2) that the transaction is substantially unfair, and after investigation of the circumstances both attendant and antecedent, to revise the transaction between the parties and if necessary to reduce the amount payable to such sum as the Court, having regard to the risk and all the circumstances of the case, may decide to be reasonable. The Local Governments have been consulted and legislation in this direction has commanded almost universal approval. Provision has been made to cover the case of loans of grain as well as of money, as loans in kind are often made on very oppressive terms. As there may be urban or rural areas where the proposed law is deemed unnecessary it has been provided that the Act shall not come into force in any Province or part of a Province except by notification.

DARJEELING, THE 22ND SEPTEMBER 1917.

RESOLUTION—No. 1334T.R.

READ—

Letter No. 37R.G., dated the 16th May 1917, from the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, submitting, with his remarks, the final report on the famine relief operations in the district of Bankura, during the years 1915 and 1916.

THE district of Bankura comprises an area of 2,621 square miles and has a population of 1,138,000. The soil is generally poor, and in the south and west of the district much of the land is covered with jungle. The average rainfall at the head-quarters station is 54·39 inches. The cultivated area is estimated at 35 per cent. of the whole area of the district. The principal crop is winter rice which is grown on 83 per cent. of the cultivated area : there are no large irrigation works in the district, but there is some irrigation from reservoirs, locally known as bandhs : owing to the poverty of the soil and the undulating nature of the country the winter rice crop is peculiarly liable to suffer when the rainfall is deficient, and as the district depends so largely on this single crop it is not surprising to find that Bankura is more susceptible to famine than any district in the Presidency. It has in fact suffered from serious famine in 1866, 1874 and 1897 and from scarcity in 1885 and 1908. The famine of 1916 was the severest calamity that has visited the district since the famine of 1866.

2. Throughout June, July and August 1915 the rainfall was about 50 per cent. in defect of the normal over the greater part of the district with the result that the autumn rice crop which is grown on 7 per cent. of the cultivated area had an outturn of only ½ of the normal, while the winter rice crop was almost a complete failure : only ⅛ of the normal area bore any crop at all, and the outturn for the whole district was estimated at 16 per cent. of the normal. Relief operations were started in August 1915, and were continued till November 1916, when a bumper crop of winter rice restored normal conditions. Until the end of March 1916 the expenditure on relief was met by the District Board aided by grants from Government, and on the 1st April 1916, with distress increasing and with no prospect of its cessation before the harvesting of the next winter rice crop, Government decided that it was necessary to make a formal declaration that famine existed throughout the district. The subsequent expenditure was borne by the State.

3. Imports of rice by the Bengal-Nagpur Railway kept up the supplies of food in the district : on two occasions, viz., in August 1915 and in May 1916 prices rose abnormally in the interior of the district : on the first occasion the Marwari merchants in Bankura town were induced to send rice to the interior and sell it at a low price, with the result that the local dealers lowered their prices to those prevailing in the town : on the second occasion the Collector bought Rs. 7,000 worth of rice in Bankura town and sent it out for sale, and at a net cost of Rs. 215 the prices were lowered again.

4. The total expenditure in wages on relief works was Rs. 5,80,837 and the largest number of people employed at one time was 22,319, or 1·96 of the population of the district, in May 1916. The average daily wage was 2 annas 2·8 pies, and the wages given were sufficient to maintain the dependants of the workers. Owing to the organization of numerous small works instead of large works, the labourers were enabled to live at their own homes, and thus the difficulties of famine camps were avoided. The relief works included 62 reservoirs, 7 irrigation channels and 61 roads. The Governor in Council notices with pleasure that these works were all completed, that the reservoirs are expected to afford some measure of protection against future famine, and that owing to the utilisation of honorary agents the percentage of the cost of establishment to the total cost of relief was kept as low as 6·5. The Governor in Council is satisfied that the relief works were conducted in a manner which provided the maximum benefit to the district and the minimum discomfort to the people who were engaged on them.

5. The total amount distributed by Government as gratuitous relief was Rs. 2,65,142, and the largest number of people relieved at one time was 21,614, or 1·89 of the total population of the district, in May 1916. The doles were at the rate of 5 pice daily for a man, 3 pice for a woman and 2 pice for a child, and they were given weekly at 155 centres. No kitchens or poor houses were opened, and the Governor in Council accepts the opinion of the Collector that in view of the adequacy of stocks of food cash doles were more effective and cheaper than doles of food. The gratuitous relief distributed by charitable societies was in the form of doles of rice, and owing to the limited areas in which they worked the societies were enabled to manage this form of relief satisfactorily.

6. The Weavers' Relief Committee presided over by Mr. Tindall, the District Judge, rendered invaluable service in maintaining 2,500 families of weavers for ten months at a net expenditure of about Rs. 10,000, the cost per head of persons relieved being 2 annas 2 pies per month. The Committee sold manufactured cloth of the value of Rs. 1,14,992, and carried out their operations most successfully in the face of great difficulties.

7. The net total expenditure incurred by Government was Rs. 9,72,206. In addition to this Rs. 8,41,940 were advanced under the Agriculturists' Loans Act and Rs. 2,20,994 under the Land Improvement Loans Act. Altogether 94,896 persons received agricultural loans, and the sum of 5½ lakhs which was advanced in 1916 enabled the recipients to cultivate their lands to the full extent in that year. Land Improvement Loans not only provided employment for large numbers, but facilitated the execution of useful water-supply works. The realization of the instalments of these loans which have fallen due since the famine ended has been very satisfactory. The Governor in Council endorses the opinion of the Collector that the loans under both Acts were of great benefit: without them the direct expenditure would have been far higher.

8. The Commissioner has referred to the opinion expressed in the report on the famine of 1897 that the population were then in a better position to resist famine than they were in 1874. The severity of the distress in the recent famine, resulting from the failure of one monsoon, raises the question of the present economic condition of the district. Relief became necessary in August 1915, and by the time of the harvest of the winter rice crop 1 per cent. of the population was in receipt of relief, while in May 1916 the percentage on relief of one kind or another rose to 4·20: in previous famines relief has not been found necessary until a later stage. The Collector is probably correct in his view that the opening of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway by facilitating export and thereby creating a higher standard of living has had the effect of reducing the stocks of rice which in former years supported the people at the beginning of a period of distress. In providing for the importation of rice during the famine and thereby keeping down prices the railway certainly restricted the severity of the famine, but there can be little doubt that facilities for export unaccompanied by thrift are not an unmixed blessing to an ignorant population. The Collector remarks on the marked improvidence of the aborigines who constitute a large proportion of the population, and it is said that in this respect the remainder are no better. The report of the Weavers' Relief Committee shows that the weavers of the district are liable to be ruined by any abnormal conditions. There are at present no co-operative societies in Bankura district. Facilities for export and the resulting improved prices obtainable for their products afford to the people means for providing against the failure of crops which, as history shows, must be expected from time to time, but unless habits of thrift are developed such provision will not be made. The Governor in Council therefore hopes that among the honorary workers of the district who did so much to alleviate the suffering due to the famine there will be found men who will undertake the task of introducing co-operation and thrift, and thereby preparing the people to meet future famines.

9. The Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell visited the district in September 1915 and in April and August 1916 and made extensive tours with the Commissioner and Collector: he found that the arrangements were conducted with economy and efficiency. His Excellency in Council desires to record his high appreciation of the services rendered by Mr. Lees, the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, and Mr. Cook, the Collector of Bankura. Mr. Cook's energy was untiring and his organization was most successful. He received ungrudging support from the officers serving under him, amongst whom Babu Suresh Chandra Chatarji, District Engineer, and Babu Hem Kumar Mullick, Subdivisional Officer of Bankura, deserve special mention. Mr. Tindall, the District Judge, the Revd. A. Brown, and the other members of the Weavers' Relief Committee rendered the most valuable assistance. Dr. Ramnath Mukharji, as Secretary of the District Board Sub-Committee for dealing with famine and as Secretary of the District Relief Committee, gave great assistance in the organization of relief by non-official agencies. His Excellency notices with great pleasure the efficient work which was done by the members of panchayats in connection with relief works and the distribution of gratuitous relief: no kind of public service could be of higher value: he endorses the Collector's opinion that the work done constitutes valuable training in local self-government and looks forward to the time when the development of union committees will give the panchayats of Bankura district greater opportunities for useful work in normal times. The report gives details of the assistance afforded by numerous charitable societies and of the contributions to the District Famine Relief Fund. His Excellency in Council acknowledges the great value of the generosity and of the ungrudging labours of private persons, whose assistance added very materially to the efficiency of the measures for relief.

RESOLUTION REGARDING THE PROPOSAL FOR THE AMENDMENT OF THE LAW RELATING TO THE REGISTRATION OF MUHAMMADAN MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

REGISTRATION.

DARJEELING, THE 24TH SEPTEMBER 1917.

RESOLUTION—No. 1410T.R.

READ—

The Resolution recorded by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal on the 31st May 1884 on the report of a Committee appointed for the purpose of revising the rules and procedure under the Muhammadan Marriage Registration Act and of supervising the Kazis appointed in Bengal, and the general working of the Act.

Letter No. 142T.D., dated the 30th October 1916, from the Inspector-General of Registration, Bengal, submitting a draft Bill drawn up by himself and the Permanent Committee for the supervision of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars and Kazis in Bengal for the amendment of the law relating to the registration of Muhammadan marriages and divorces.

The law in force in Bengal on this subject consists of Act I (B.C.) of 1876, an Act to provide for the voluntary registration of Muhammadan Marriages and Divorces, and Act XII of 1880, an Act for the appointment of persons to the office of Kazi. The Act of 1880 was first extended to certain districts in Bengal on the 31st May 1884.

2. Since the passing of Act I (B.C.) of 1876 the Government of Bengal have from time to time instituted enquiries as to the causes which hinder the extension of the practice of registering Muhammadan marriages and divorces, and various proposals for amending the law have been considered, but the law remains as it was enacted in 1876 and 1880, and the measures which have been taken have been confined to alterations in the Statutory rules and executive orders.

3. The most important change in the law which has from time to time been suggested is that registration should be made compulsory: this proposal has at no time commended itself to the Muhammadan community in general or to Government, and it is not included in the Bill now under consideration. The Bill, however, involves important modifications in the law in respect of five subjects, and these have received the careful consideration of the Governor in Council.

4. The first of these proposals is the abolition of Naib-Kazis. This recommendation involves the amendment, or the withdrawal from Bengal, of Act XII of 1880. The Act empowers a Kazi to appoint or remove any number of Naib-Kazis. On the other hand it confers no legal powers on Kazis, it prevents no person from discharging the functions of a Kazi, nor does it distinguish the functions of a Kazi from those of a Naib-Kazi. The legal position is therefore altogether indefinite. On the whole, it appears to the Governor in Council that, as the expression Naib-Kazi connotes no powers under any law, no advantage is to be gained by an attempt to abolish those functionaries.

5. The second proposal of importance is to repeal section 10 of Act I (B.C.) of 1876 under which a Muhammadan Marriage Registrar is "not prohibited from receiving," in other words is permitted to receive, a gratuity in excess of the prescribed fee of one rupee, when such gratuity is voluntarily tendered. The Bill provides for an enhanced fixed fee in place of gratuity, and the Inspector-General of Registration has recorded a strong condemnation of the existing law which permits gratuities. The Governor in Council recognizes the objections to a system of gratuities. Primâ facie, such a system is not only inconsistent with the general standard which regulates the conduct of public officers, but is also open to obvious abuse. On the other hand, in examining the question of amending the law with a view to stopping this system the Governor in Council cannot but attach weight to the arguments against a change. In particular, registration being voluntary, the natural result of an excessive demand would be a refusal to register, involving the Registrar in the loss of any remuneration at all. Excessive demands are therefore automatically discouraged. Again, while the general absence of complaints from the poorer classes of the Muhammadan community is far from proving that all is well, on the other hand, the Governor in Council feels that the allegations of abuse, which are sporadically made but not proved, would hardly justify him in proposing this fundamental change in the law Apart from this, it is very doubtful whether with the existing machinery for supervision, prohibition of gratuities would be accompanied by their cessation. Finally, it must be remembered that the income of many Muhammadan Marriage Registrars is admittedly so low as to render their appointments of little value. The Governor in Council, therefore, apprehends that if gratuities were abolished, the fixed fees would have to be raised to such a high figure that the poorest classes would be deterred from making use of the law, whereas under existing conditions there are facilities for adjusting the charges to suit the means of all parties. In short, the present position is not unlike that which prevails in the Christian community where the bridegroom gives such fee to the officiating and registering clergyman as his own means can afford. For these reasons the Governor in Council, as at present advised, is not prepared to undertake legislation to abolish the system of gratuities.

6. The third proposal is to legalise the registration of "Talak Bilyad," i.e., a divorce effected by the wife alone in accordance with authority conferred as a condition of her marriage. On this subject the Governor in Council finds that the Bill entrusts the Muhammadan Marriage Registrar with certain quasi-judicial duties which he is clearly of opinion that Muhammadan Marriage Registrars as a class should not be called on to exercise. Moreover, the Governor in Council has reason to believe that the Muhammadan Community is by no means unanimously in favour of this proposal and he is therefore unable to accept it.

7. The fourth proposal is to legalise the registration by Muhammadan Marriage Registrars of such deeds of dower and divorce as do not deal in any manner with immoveable property. It is also proposed to forbid the registration of these documents by Sub-Registrars appointed under the Indian Registration Act. This proposal involves the amendment of the Indian Registration Act under which the public are entitled to present such deeds for registration to a Sub-Registrar. A similar proposal has been negatived by the Government of Bengal on two previous occasions. The Governor in Council has again examined the question and he is not convinced that it would be generally acceptable. The public have confidence in Sub-Registrars and would prefer that the registration of documents, as distinct from the registration of ceremonies, should remain with them. He is therefore unable to accept this proposal.

8. The fifth proposal is to provide in the law for the Permanent Committee of supervision and to give to it very wide statutory powers. This Committee was first constituted by the Resolution of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, dated the 31st May 1884, and its duties have from time to time been prescribed by Resolutions and in the Statutory Rules. Resolution No. 211J.D. of the Government of Bengal, dated the 17th September 1912, provides that the Committee shall consist of five or more members, the Inspector-General of Registration being ex-officio President and that it shall deal with the following matters :—

(1) The consideration of all nominations to the post of Muhammadan Marriage Registrar or Kazi.

(2) Recommendations for suspension, dismissal and removal of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars and Kazis.

(3) And such other matters as the President may desire to place before the Committee for advice.

The Committee is referred to in the Statutory Rules of 1916 and it is provided therein that the nominations of District Registrars for appointment to the post of Muhammadan Marriage Registrar shall be placed before the Permanent Committee, who shall forward them to Government with their remarks and recommendations. It is also laid down that if the Committee disapprove of the nomination of the District Registrar they may ask him to submit a fresh nomination, or they may select any other candidate: one of the members of, or a person appointed by, the Permanent Committee is authorized to set the papers for the examination of Muhammadan Marriage Registrar and the Permanent Committee is authorized to decide which candidates have passed. The present Committee is therefore working partly on a statutory and partly on an executive basis. In the Bill now under consideration it has been provided that Government shall appoint a Statutory Committee to assist and advise Government regarding the appointment, transfer, suspension, removal and supervision of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars and Kazis, and that every member shall be competent to inspect the offices of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars.

In 1912 the Governor in Council declined to entertain a proposal that members of the Committee should be empowered to inspect offices and he sees no reason to alter this decision. Nor is he prepared to add to their duties the consideration of questions of transfer of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars. These questions can more suitably be dealt with by the Inspector-General of Registration as head of the Registration Department. The Governor in Council has recently had under consideration the subject of the functions of the Permanent Committee: he has found that their advice has been of material assistance to Government on general questions of legislation and the framing of rules, and that their opinions on technical questions of Muhammadan law which arise in the administration of the Act have been of great value to him. He desires to take this opportunity of thanking them for their notable services in these respects. He has found, however, that for questions of appointment and dismissal a Central Committee, which cannot without inconvenience sit frequently, is unsuitable, and that serious delay has occurred in dealing with cases which required expeditious disposal. He, therefore, proposes to restrict the functions of the Committee to those of an Advisory Committee on general questions. They will also retain the functions of an examining body. On the other hand, as explained below, he proposes to provide for local Committees to assist him in making appointments. He is, therefore, unable to accept those proposals for legislation which relate to the Permanent Committee.

9. The Governor in Council has reviewed the progress which has been made in attaining the purpose of the Act, viz., that the practice of registration of Muhammadan marriages and divorces shall be extended as widely as possible. Alterations in the constitution of the Province and the gradual extension of the Act to new districts make it difficult to present concisely the increase in registrations in the whole Province, but the figures for the Dacca Division in which the Act is of primary importance show a steady progress. For the first period of 15 years during which the Act was in force registrations were generally from 2,000 to 3,000 annually. During the next period of 15 years there was a steady increase from 4,000 to 16,000, and though the increase has not been quite continuous during the last 10 years the average number for the past 4 years has been about 35,000. It is true that these figures represent a very small portion of the ceremonies which are registrable, but the progress is substantial, and it points to the expediency of adhering to the policy of patience in awaiting improvement. This policy was adopted by Government in the early period when the Act was generally considered to be a failure. Frequent proposals were made for changing the policy and amending the Act. Time has however shown that the policy was sound.

10. Although the Governor in Council has decided that there are at present insufficient grounds for any legislation, he has considered whether any measures short of legislation are desirable for improving the working of the Act and in this respect he has come to the following conclusions.

11. Between 1912 and 1916 the number of registration offices has only increased from 273 to 276: the Governor in Council desires that the Inspector-General of Registration will examine the position with a view to increasing the number of offices in areas in which facilities for registration are found to be insufficient. In making this examination the Inspector-General of Registration will of course bear in mind that the multiplication of offices tends to reduce the income of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars and thereby to discourage suitable men from taking up this work. Moreover, in areas in which an individual Registrar has made the Act popular and increased the number of registrations, consideration should be shown to the successful Registrar during the continuance of his incumbency. But even after due weight has been given to those factors in the situation there is probably room for a substantial increase in the number of offices. The Governor in Council therefore awaits the specific proposals of the Inspector-General of Registration.

12. The income of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars as already noted is often very small. In some cases it is even insufficient to provide a living in the absence of some other occupation. In such cases it is obvious that no one but a local man can be expected to fill the post. The Governor in Council therefore considers it desirable that when a suitable candidate can be found who can live in his own home and conduct his duties there, he should be always given preference over others. He does not object to the office of the Registrar being removed from one place to another, so as to enable the incumbent to reside at his home provided that the office is situated within the area of the Registrar's jurisdiction. If these principles be borne in mind, it will be possible to establish offices in much larger numbers than in the past.

13. With a view to facilitate the selection of suitable local candidates the Governor in Council has decided to modify the existing method of appointment. In each district there will be an Advisory Committee of Muhammadans to assist in selecting candidates. Where a local Muhammadan Association is already in existence and is recognised by Government, this Association, with its own consent, will be treated as the Advisory Committee. Where there is no distinct local Muhammadan Association, but a branch of a larger association recognised by Government, the same principle will be applied. In other districts a Committee of five Muhammadans which will ordinarily include two officials and three non-officials will be appointed by the Inspector-General of Registration in consultation with the District Registrar to advise the District Registrar on the subject of appointments. The recommendations of the Committee as regards appointments will be submitted to Government by the District Registrar through the Inspector-General of Registration. The Governor in Council is confident that this system will be more effectual than the present system of a centralised Committee in bringing to the notice of Government the claims of local men of respectable character and suitable attainments. It will then be possible to open new offices in places in which the Registrar will be contented with a small income from fees, because he is able to carry on his former occupation. Questions of transfer and dismissal will not be dealt with by the local Committees, but by the District Registrar, and by the Inspector-General Registration, who will submit his proposals to Government.

14. In 1915 the Permanent Committee recommended the appointment of three special Inspectors of Muhammadan Marriage Registration Offices. Consideration of the proposal was postponed pending the receipt of proposals for legislation. The Governor in Council recognizes that inspection of these offices is at present inadequate, and he is convinced of the necessity of more efficient inspection and of a systematic endeavour to discover and remove the causes which render the Act unpopular in certain areas, and to improve the facilities for registration. For this he looks primarily to the District Officer who is usually the District Registrar. Inspectors of Registration Offices, District Sub-Registrars and Subdivisional Officers should also consider such inspection to be an important part of their ordinary duties. In localities where the District Sub-Registrar or Subdivisional Officer is a Muhammadan a special inspecting staff is uncalled for. In other places, however, there is much to be said for supplementing the inspections of the District Officer by the inspections of a special staff. On the return of normal financial conditions, the Governor in Council will therefore consider the question of appointing two special Inspectors of Muhammadan Marriage Registration Offices for this duty.

15. The Statutory Rules will now be amended in accordance with the terms of this Resolution.

Bengal Pilot Service.—There were during the year 61 Pilots, including one Licensed Branch Pilot and 10 Leadsmen Apprentices in the Bengal Pilot Service. Without impairing the efficiency of the service to any material extent, Government were able to grant permission to 11 Pilots and 4 Leadsmen apprentices to proceed on actice service in connection with the war.

The casualties in the service were (a) one Branch Pilot retired, (b) one Senior Master Pilot, who proceeded on active service in connection with the war and obtained the military rank of Major, was killed in a motor bicycle accident in France, and (c) one Leadsman Apprentice resigned. As suitable recruits from England were not available, an endeavour was made to obtain Leadsmen Apprentices from the Mercantile Marine in the East, but only one candidate applied and he was appointed as a Leadsman Apprentice.

2. Vessels piloted.—Vessels to the number of 1,119 with a gross tonnage of 4,513,255 and vessels to the number of 1,125 with a gross tonnage of 4,549,737 were piloted inwards and outwards, respectively, against 1,145 and 1.154 vessels with a gross tonnage of 4,832,612 and 4,750,736, respectively, during the preceding year.

The number of vessels drawing over 21 feet piloted inwards and outwards was 304 and 738 against 395 and 739 vessels in the past year.

Five vessels were detained at the Sandheads for want of a Pilot. There were no such detentions in the preceding year.

During the year one inward-bound and two outward-bound vessels were neaped for want of sufficient depth of water over the bars. Two inward-bound vessels were similarly neaped in 1915-16.

3. Pilotage receipts.—The receipts from pilotage fees were Rs. 10,73,967 against Rs. 11,06,117 and Rs. 13,14 601 in the two previous years.

4. Casualties to vessels.—There were 18 cases of groundings against 23 in 1915-16. No damage resulted. In four instances the Pilots were found to be guilty of error of judgment. Two collisions occurred against one in the preceding year. In one case damage resulted ; the Pilot was found to be guilty of an error of judgment and suitably dealt with. Two cases of casualties to inland steam-vessels were referred to Special Courts of Enquiry.

5. Examinations.—Out of a total number of 78 candidates 32 successfully passed the examination for the grant of Colonial and Home-Trade certificates of competency as Master, Mate, Engineer or Engine driver and 122 out of 460 candidates passed the examinations for the grant of certificates of competency as Master, Serang or Engine driver of inland steam-vessels.

6. Captain D. F. Vines, R.I.M., held the office of the Port Officer and Shipping Master throughout the year except for the short period of 30 days' war leave from the 16th October to the 14th November 1916 when Commander G. H. S. LaTouche, R.I.M., Deputy Port Officer and Deputy Shipping Master carried on those duties in addition to his own. Commander G. H. S. La Touche, R.I.M., was Deputy Port Officer, during the year with the exception of the period from 1st May to 28th June 1916, when he was on privilege leave. Mr. S. H. Reaks, Senior Master Pilot, carried on the duties of the Assistant Port Officer, Lieutenant J. C. Ward, R.I.M., the permanent incumbent, having been transferred to military duty.

Engineer Commander C. F. Laslett, R.I.M., Engineer Lieutenant E. S. Borner, R.I.M., and Mr. G. F. Silley continued as 1st, 2nd and 3rd Engineer and Shipwright-Surveyor, respectively, throughout the year.

The thanks of Government are due to Commander Vines for his very efficient administration of the department during another strenuous year. The members of the Pilot Service on duty during the year again cooperated freely and heartily in all the measures necessitated by the war.

Port of Chittagong.

Vessels entering and leaving the Port.—Vessels numbering 774 (including 547 inland steamers) with a gross tonnage of 529,517 entered the Port and 776 vessels (including 547 inland steamers) with a gross tonnage of 525,423 cleared as against 838 vessels (inclusive of 535 inland steamers) and 817 vessels (inclusive of 519 inland steamers) representing a gross tonnage of 626,305 and 621,516, respectively, in the preceding year.

2. Casualties to vessels.—Three cases of casualties to vessels occurred during the year. In two cases the vessels were totally lost owing to foul weather. In the other case damage was caused owing to the vessel's fouling the jetties when swinging to the ebb tide.

3. Examinations.—Out of a total number of 82 candidates, 26 successfully passed the examination for the grant of certificates of competency as Master, Serang or Engine driver of inland steam-vessels.

Commander B. H. Jones, R.I.M., Port Officer and Shipping Master reverted to the Royal Indian Marine, on the 16th April 1916. Mr. W. W. Nind, Collector of Customs, Chittagong carried on those duties up to the 3rd May 1916, when he was relieved by Commander E. Gray Mills, R.I.M., Commander Mills fell ill and proceeded on leave making over charge of his duties to Mr. W. W. Nind on the afternoon of the 1st July 1916. Mr. Nind was relieved on the 7th July 1916 by Commander H. Morland, R.I.M., who was permanently appointed to be Port Officer and Shipping Master. Engineer A. H. F. de Woolfson, R.I.M., Engineer and Shipwright-Surveyor, reverted to the Royal Indian Marine on the 22nd July 1916 and was succeeded by Engineer G. Hull, R.I.M. FINAL FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP, 1917.

Consolidated statement for Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, and Assam.

Area.—The estimated area for the three Provinces is 2,729,699 acres, an increase of 27,000 acres on last year's figures.

Yield.—It is estimated that the crop will yield 8,904,364 bales of jute, an increase of 524,511 bales on last year's returns.

Remarks.—In Northern and Eastern Bengal cutting and steeping have been delayed owing to lack of water and a large amount of jute still remains to be retted.

Last year's estimates for Assam have been revised by the local Department.

The consolidated figures are as follows :—

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Forecast of the Jute Crop of Bengal for 1917.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1915-16 the area under jute to which this forecast relates represents 87·7 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.)

Season.—The weather, as stated in the Preliminary Forecast, was favourable for the crop in its early stages. July was generally seasonable, although the crop in some districts suffered from insect and fungus attacks. The month of August was on the whole too dry for the crop, and the want of water during that month and during the first half of September has seriously interfered with steeping operations in many of the Eastern and Northern Bengal districts.

Condition of the crop.—The crop may be described as a very good one, on the whole, in most of the Eastern Bengal districts, moderate only in Northern Bengal, and good in Western Bengal.

Acreage.—In the Preliminary Forecast the area was returned as 2,359,820 acres. This estimate has been increased by 52,607 acres, making the total area 2,412,427 acres compared with last year's final figures of 2,383,562 or an increase of 1 per cent.

Outturn.—As in previous years, the percentage figures are calculated on the basis of Divisional normals which remain as follows :—Dacca and Chittagong 3·7 each, Rajshahi 3·5, Presidency and Burdwan 3·3 bales per acre.

Nadia ...	67,155	70,089	64	59	132,601	131,981	Middle of August. Normal.	The increase in area as compared with the preliminary forecast is due to the inclusion of area not reported by some panchayets at the time of submission of the first forecast and also due to revision after checking. Some damage was caused by floods.
Murshidabad ...	26,169	26,476	80	78	55,387	65,948	August to September. Normal.	The increase in area as compared with the preliminary forecast is principally due to result of checking the panchayet figures. Insect-pests in the Lalbagh subdivision and flood caused the outturn to fall below the normal.
Jessore ...	85,014	84,706	88	99·6	234,490	270,265	August. Normal ...	The increase in area as compared with that estimated in the preliminary forecast is due to revision after checking by the officers of the Agricultural Department. Some damage was caused to the crop by flood and insect-pests in the Jhenidah and Magura subdivisions. The increase in yield for the district as a whole is due to timely rainfall.
Khulna ...	29,111	27,727	95	105	66,958	93,161	End of August. Normal.
Burdwan ...	6,913	6,451	90·8	90	20,087	18,578	First week of September. Normal.
Midnapore ...	12,082	14,957	88	90	33,937	41,903	Middle of August. Normal.	The increase in area over last year's estimate was due to timely rainfall at the sowing season. Some damage was done to the crop by floods.
Hooghly ...	33,810	33,723	97·5	101·6	105,412	109,758	Last week of August. Normal.	This year's outturn would have been better but for water-logging in low-lying areas, owing to comparatively heavy rainfall.
Howrah ...	10,887	13,366	98·7	104	34,406	44,375	Middle of August. Normal.	The contraction of area as compared with the preliminary forecast is due to the fact that some areas originally sown with jute have been devoted to winter paddy on account of heavy rainfall. The outturn of jute grown on high land is estimated to be better than it was last year.
Rajshahi ...	75,800	81,094	83	88·5	219,000	249,784	Middle of August. Late.	The increase in area and outturn is due to favourable weather. The harvesting is late for want of sufficient water for retting.
Dinajpur ...	67,200	61,700	88·6	84·3	208,000	182,015	Middle of August. Late.	The decrease in area is due to want of rainfall at sowing time and also the low price of jute. Much difficulty is being felt throughout the district owing to the insufficiency of water for steeping jute.
Jalpaiguri ...	48,240	52,500	85·7	83	144,720	152,250	Middle of August. Normal.	The decrease in outturn as compared with last year is due to the insufficiency of rainfall during the sowing season. The increase in area as compared with the first forecast is due to revision after checking.
Darjeeling ...	2,945	2,562	100	95·7	10,300	7,686	Last week of July. Normal.	Sowings were late and heavy rain immediately after injuriously affected the young plants.

Rangpur ...	243,618	256,381	88·5	81	735,215	728,754	August. Normal ...	The increase in area is due to the favourable price obtained by the cultivators last year. The decrease in outturn is due to the defective rainfall during the months from June to August which retarded growth of plants and interfered with the steeping of jute. The crop has not been harvested in some parts and unless there be more rainfall it is feared that the outturn estimated will even be less.
Bogra ...	66,000	64,785	83	82	191,400	185,923	Middle of July. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to fall in the price of jute owing to the war. Steeping operations have been interfered with owing to insufficient rainfall.
Pabna ...	134,425	117,600	85·7	95	408,149	390,840	July. Normal ...	The increase in area as compared with the estimate in the preliminary forecast is due to revision after careful checking. On the Serajganj side some trouble is being experienced by the cultivators in retting jute on account of the sudden subsidence of the flood water.
Malda	23,300	34,000	75	88·5	61,000	107,000	End of July. Normal	This year the outturn would have been normal had the conditions been favourable for steeping jute.
Dacca	281,110	262,083	83·3	103	866,428	939,584	July. Normal ...	The decrease in area is due to the scarcity of seeds and apprehensions of a dull market on the part of the cultivators on account of the difficulties of shipping. The weather conditions have been exceptionally good. The results of experimental crop-cuttings show the outturn to be above the normal. The steeping operations in the high lands of the northern part of the district have, however, somewhat been hampered owing to the sudden subsidence of flood.
Mymensingh ...	587,911	579,608	89·5	102·7	1,945,983	2,207,157	Low lands—Middle of July. Normal. High lands—Beginning of August. Late.	The outturn has been good, but difficulty is being felt in steeping jute for want of sufficient water in pools and ditches.
Faridpur ...	214,300	200,000	97	93	771,880	691,000	July. Normal ...	The reasons for the outturn falling below the normal are :— (1) Late sowing for want of timely rainfall. (2) Sudden rise of the river. (3) Damage by insects in parts of the district.
Bakarganj ...	49,390	37,000	97	100	177,261	11,000	July. Early ...	The increase in area is due to favourable weather at the sowing season. The weather was favourable throughout. Slight damage was done by jute caterpillars to some parts of the Sadar and Pirojpur subdivisions. A normal crop is, however, estimated.
Chittagong ...	200	200	90	90	666	666	First week of September. Normal.
Tippera ...	198,517	228,318	92	78	668,944	681,019	First week of August. Normal.	Diminution of outturn is reported to be due to widespread fungus disease (rhizoctonia).

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

Final Forecast of the Jute Crop of Bihar and Orissa, 1917.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1915-16, the area under jute to which the Bihar and Orissa forecast relates represents about 9·2 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.)

Acreage.—The final district returns of the seven jute-growing districts of the province show an area under jute of 223,272 acres or, in round numbers, 223,300 acres as compared with 222,700 acres reported in the preliminary forecast and 224,000 acres reported in the final forecast of last year.

2. Weather Conditions.—In March the rainfall was above the normal in Champaran, Bhagalpur and Balasore and slightly below the normal in the remaining four jute districts. In April the rainfall was below the normal and in May and June it was above the normal in all jute districts. In July it was above the normal in Champaran, Muzaffarpur and the Santal Parganas and below the normal in the remaining districts. In August the rainfall was below the normal in all jute districts, except in Cuttack and Balasore, where it was above the normal. Weather conditions are reported not to have been uniformly favourable in the important districts of Purnea and Cuttack. Some damage was done by floods in parts of Bhagalpur and the Santal Parganas.

3. Outturn.—In consultation with the Collector of Purnea I estimate the outturn of the crop for that district at normal, i.e., 100 per cent. In other jute districts the percentage outturn is reported as under :—

Champaran	...	...	100
Muzaffarpur	...	...	83
Santal Parganas	...	...	92
Bhagalpur	...	...	98
Cuttack	...	...	93
Balasore	...	...	90

The outturn in the above districts, except Champaran, appears to have been underestimated, and I am of opinion that the crop will not be under the normal in these districts also.

Accepting 100 per cent. as the outturn of the crop for all the districts and taking 3 bales as the normal outturn per acre, the total gross outturn of the crop for the province this year comes to 669,816 bales or, in round numbers, 669,800 bales.

The average import of raw jute into this province from Nepal during the last three years was equivalent to 64,446 bales. This figure, added to the figure for the province arrived at, gives a total for Bihar and Orissa of 734,262 bales or, in round numbers, 734,300 bales.

There has been a decrease in the jute area in parts of Kishanganj, while an increase in Araria and in the western portion of the Sadar subdivision. Though the divergence in outturn in different areas is great the crop for the district as a whole will be about the normal.

The weather was not very favourable as the rainfall was continuous and hence the outturn is expected to be a little below the normal. 20,000 acres were shown in the first forecast as the area sown under this crop. 700 acres more were sown in the Kendrapara subdivision after submission of the same, and the area has accordingly been now shown as 20,700 acres.

The weather conditions are favourable in the sadar subdivision, but in the Bhadrak subdivision the prospect is worse, owing to a sudden break in the monsoon with excessive rain which was detrimental to the healthy growth of the crop. The prospect of the crop in the Sadar subdivision is good.

DEPARTMENT OF LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE, ASSAM.

Final Forecast of the Jute Crop, 1917.

(NOTE.—On the average of the five years ending 1915-16, the area under jute in Assam represents some 3·1 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.)

Character of the season.—As indicated in the preliminary forecast, the weather in the earlier part of the year was generally not favourable except in Sylhet. Though the unfavourable conditions changed for the better in July and August, a good deal of damage had been done already and the crop is not as good as last year. Heavy rains and consequent floods in June affected the area and outturn in Goalpara, the principal jute-growing district. In Sylhet the weather was favourable throughout and there was an increase both in area and outturn in comparison with last year.

Area sown.—The figures for the permanently settled areas of Sylhet and Goalpara have been as in previous years compiled by village panchayets and for other districts by the Land Records staff.

The total area under the crop, as estimated by the Deputy Commissioners, comes to 94,000 acres as against the revised figures of 95,100 acres of last year, and 76,700 acres shown in the preliminary forecast of this year. In comparison with the revised area of last year the area in Goalpara has been reduced by 5,200 acres and in Cachar and Sibsagar each by 100 acres; the districts of Sylhet, Kamrup and Darrang show increases of 1,700, 700 and 1,900 acres, respectively, while in Nowgong, Lakhimpur and Garo Hills the area is unchanged. The net decrease of 1,100 acres is mainly due to the large reduction in Goalpara. The Deputy Commissioners of Sylhet, Goalpara, Darrang and Nowgong have revised the figures reported in the preliminary forecast.

Outturn.—The percentage of outturn, as estimated by the Deputy Commissioners, is 74 of the normal against 80 (revised) of the previous year. Taking the average outturn of 3·3 bales per acre, the normal fixed for this province, the total outturn is 221,146 bales against 255,740 bales (revised) of last year; this means a decrease of about 14 per cent. and is mainly due to the decrease in area and poor outturn in Goalpara and generally unfavourable weather in the early part of the season.

Cachar ...	300	300	210	80	75	792	495	August. Normal ...	The heavy rainfall in February and want of sufficient rain in March are the causes of the decrease in both area and outturn.

The weather has on the whole been favourable from start to finish, which has caused a slight increase in area and outturn as compared with last year. The outturn below normal is due to March being much drier than usual.
Goalpara ...	43,400	53,300	48,100	80	61	140,712	96,866	1st July. Normal ...	The decrease in area is due to want of rain at the beginning. The low outturn is attributed to drought in April and heavy rains in June and consequent early floods.
Kamrup ...	8,100	7,100	7,800	41‡	50	18,978‡	19,074	15th August. Normal.	The increase in area is due to immigration of jute cultivators from Bengal and to favourable weather in areas inhabited by Nepalese. The outturn below normal is due to insufficient rain at the early stage of the crop.

The crop abstract figures of last year, however, was probably underestimated. The outturn will be below normal owing to excessive rain in some places and deficiency in others at the time of sowing, and to damage done in some places by insect pests.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 24th September 1917.

Summary.—During the week under report seasonable rain fell all over the province, facilitating steeping and washing of jute. The rainfall also rendered further transplantation of winter rice possible in Northern Bengal, where operations have been hitherto greatly hampered by comparatively dry weather. Harvesting of jute and other autumn crops is approaching completion in Eastern Bengal. Weeding of winter paddy continues. The condition and prospects of the crop are so far good. The preparation of the land for rabi crops has commenced. Cattle-disease is reported from nine districts. The average price of common rice for the province has fallen by about 0·5 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.
